$300,000 Recreational Development

By JUDY STROUP

MALDEN -- Who says there are no recreational activities available in Southeast Missouri? Certainly not the I. L. Williams family, who have developed a resort area five miles west of Malden on highway J that will rival any in the region.

The Crowley's Ridge Resort is nestled in wooded hills.

The mainfeatures of the resort are two lakes. The larger 60-acre lake, named Lake Devosia after Williams' wife, is designed for skiing and boating. An excursion boat will ply the waters of the ski lake from 6 p.m. - 10 p.m. each night.

Dinner will be served aboard, and the floating restaurant will be available for private parties from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. The boat is in its final phase of construction.

The 25-acre fishing lake is stocked with bass, crappie, channel catfish, and bluegill. A bait shop is nearby, and boats can be rented. The resort also offers fish for sale, and after purchasing a permit, a fisherman does not need a license. There is no charge for fish caught.

A swimming area with 400 feet of beach covered with white Florida sand is available. Williams said that two licensed lifeguards are on duty at all times.

A large bathouse with dressing rooms for swimmers' convenience is adjacent to the swimming area.

Facilities for campers include a trailer park with hookups, an area for tents, hot showers, picnic tables, firewood for sale, and even workship services on Sunday.

A motel with five air conditioned units with kitchenettes and television will be expanded.

There is a scenic hiking trail through wooded hills.

Williams said work on the resort began in March of 1969. Development cost, discounting land, which Williams already owned, was $300,000.

Customers pay at the entrance gate for use of facilities.

"We have had 900 to 1200 paid customers per weekend since we opened May 1," Williams said.

The resort will probably remain open until the first of December, and then close until March or April.

Williams has a strict "no excessive drinking or profanity" rule. Speed limit is 15 miles per hour and is enforced. No glass bottles are allowed in the swimming area.

Voter Registration Goal

NEW MADRID—Young Republicans began a petetion drive Tuesday to secure 1,335 signatures requesting voter registration in New Madrid county.

The 1,335 signatures which constitutes 15 per cent of the official vote cast in the 1968 governor's race, is the number of names required by Missouri law for such a petetion.

"Voter registration," said Tim O'Herin, president of the Young Republicans, "must become a law in New Madrid county, if freedom of elections are to be guaranteed."

See-Mor Wants $1 Added

Council Refuses Increase

A request by See-Mor Cable TV to raise the monthly customer subscription charge from $5 to $6 was turned down unanimously by the city council Tuesday night.

Councilman Chuck Grant said before voting on See-Mor's request that he was "irritated the city brought it around."

"The pulse rate of the people is no, don't raise it," Councilman Don Fulton commented.

Mayor Shell said he believes the reason the See-Mor franchise asked for a raise was because "the rising cost of living and expenses were more than they expected."

He said the franchise has been granted six or seven extensions on a monthly basis. He said the franchise pays the city approximately $350 for each month they are not in operation.

"As I understand it, the franchise should be in operation within the next 30 days," Shell commented.

A resolution was passed by the council authorizing the city to proceed with its application for federal funds to help the city build a recreational complex on the airport grounds.

An ordinance was passed for the rezoning of a 10-acre tract of land on the corner of Linn Street and North Ingram Road from A single family district to D commercial district.

An ordinance was passed to improve a 10-lot subdivision of Clayton Heights, north of Murray Lane.

An ordinance was passed to vacate Franklin Avenue from Allen Boulevard to Baker Lane.

The last available five per cent beer license was granted to Super D Drugs.

F. Edward Watson was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Richard Leslie on the Public library board.

Charles D. Long, Boy Scout executive, presented film slides at the meeting explaining the program of exploring.

Trial Dates Set for Five on Drug Charges

CAPE GIRARDEAU— Trial dates have been set for five youths, who are charged with selling narcotic drugs. The charges stem from the May 12 drug raids in Cape Girardeau county.

Circuit Judge W. Osler Statler set Aug. 27 for the trial of James Samuel Vinson, 27, of Sikeston, charged with selling LSD.

Trials of Hugh Marvin Gilmore, 21, of Sikeston, and Ronald Lee Wyatt, of Cape Girardeau and formerly of Sikeston, were set for Oct. 5. They are charged with selling LSD and speed.

The trials of James William McClure, Jr., 21, of Poplar Bluff, and Scott Leuckel, of Cape Girardeau, were set for Sept. 3. They are charged with selling narcotic drugs.

Gilmore, Wyatt, and Vinson and Richard C. Fakes, John G. Adams, Judith Ann Reubush, and Linda Lou Smith, all of Cape Girardeau and formerly of Sikeston, are scheduled to appear in magistrate court in Jackson Friday for preliminary hearings on possession of drugs charges.

Miner Trustees Approve 20 Cent Tax Increase

By JUDY STROUP

MINER -- The town board last night approved a 20-cent hike in the real, personal, and mixed property tax, and established fees for business licenses.

Previously, Miner charged 30 cents on each $100 assessed property valuation. The new rate is 50 cents, which is the maximum the law allows for towns and villages.

Before voting on the proposal, Mayor Milton Sadler, said, the increase "would help future projects."

Two opposed the proposal.

The additional revenue, estimated to be $700, will be added to the general revenue fund.

"We need to start having funds to plan with. People who have donated services in the past will not continue to do so as the demand for services grows," Philip McGill, board member, said.

Harold Lewis disagreed.

"My position is not to take all I can get from the citizens, but to guard the 30 cents that I do get from them," he said.

The board approved these business license fees, effective immediately: $50 plus $1 per room for hotels and motels, $25 for automotive garages and body shops, $50 for amusement businesses $50 for indoor fruit markets, $5 for custom woodwork shops, and $50 for retail grocery businesses, all operating inside the town of Miner.

Failure to pay a license fee will be a misdemeanor, and the owner of the business will be subject to a fine of not less than $5 and not more than $100.

Thirteen realtors doing business in Miner, who were billed last year for business licenses, will not be billed this year. Only two paid the fee last year. Four were in favor of exempting the realtors. Lewis abstained.

In other board action, the salary of the caretaker of the water plant was raised from $60 to $80 per month.

Two Held on Car Theft

CHARLESTON--Lindy Williams, 30, of East Prairie, and Rodney Sandlin, 24, Sikeston, are being held for investigation in connection with the theft of a 1963 Chevrolet sedan, owned by Henry Fox of 209 Hunter St., Charleston.

Fox reported his car stolen at 10:41 p.m. Tuesday. The car was recovered by Charlie Jones of the East Prairie police at 11:21 p.m. Tuesday on highway 105, two and a half miles west of East Prairie.

Authorities said that Williams was driving the car when the two were apprehended. Sandlin was reported by police to have jumped from the car and to have fled from the officer. He was later picked up in the vicinity walking along the highway.

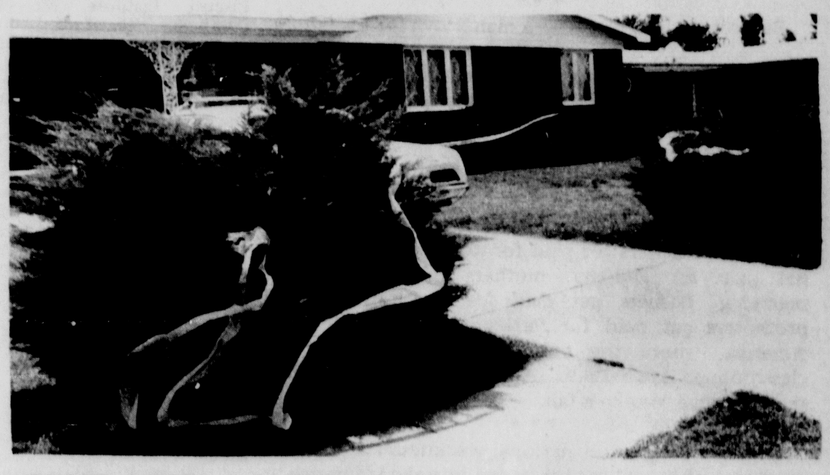

Williams told the authorities during questioning that he did not know the car was stolen but thought the vehicle belonged to Sandlin.

Other Problems Discussed

New Madrid Speeds Are Uniform

NEW MADRID -- A model traffic ordinance was adopted by the city council Tuesday night. Sewer problems, bond issues, power plant construction, and complaints by citizens were discussed.

The ordinance sets speed limits for city streets and state and federal highways within the city limits. Speed limits on all city streets were set at 25 miles per hour, state route U was 40 miles per hour, and U. The council, discussed making a three-way stop at the intersection of Scott street and highway 61.

The ordinance provides a maximum penalty of $100 fine and up to 30 days in jail for failure to observe traffic regulations.

City Administrator Russell Ellis told the council that the engineering firm of Alex Waters and Associates, of Sikeston was preparing an engineering cost estimate for the proposed sewer extension to the residents of the Billy Goat Hill area.

Fragrance at Charleston

CHARLESTON -- Police said today there have been complaints from residents about skunks roaming the streets, yards, and stinking up the place.

A dead skunk was found run over by a car on South Main street and another dead skunk was found run over on East Marshall street.

A complaint was received by police of boys dragging a skunk down a street hooked on the back of a car.

"As of yet, it hasn't got out of hand," Chief of Police Stanley Mungle said. He said there were more complaints this year than last year.

Mungle mentioned one solution offered by a Charleston resident:

Put fish out in a yard. All the skunks would come to eat the fish and then you could kill them all with a shotgun.

IN PRAISE OF MONEY

Money has been called the root of all evil, but John D. D. Sheridan, the Irish writer, figures out it also accomplishes much good. The man who says he is not fond of money must be either a saint or a liar. He is most probably the latter, for much of the work done by saints takes a lot of money.

You cannot build housing for the homeless with hope alone, and even missionaries must have sun helmets and airplane tickets. You have to put something in your basket before you go out to feed the hungry, and if you are to bind wounds you must have bandages.

People sometimes say that "money is not everything," forgetting that nothing is everything neither wealth nor beauty nor intelligence nor character nor good health. The old song, "The best things in life are free" is just a song, and it is becoming harder and harder to sing for your supper.

Money speaks for you in faraway places. A farm in Colorado can buy what you need in London, provided you convert some of the crop into money.

There is nothing shameful in being fond of money, if you keep your values in line. If you are fond of helping people with your money, instead of just wanting it for power, more money and more power to you!

Otepka came to Dallas to address the Public Affairs Luncheon Club.

Those Ailing 19-Year-Olds

Persons with hidden medical problems are most likely to be over 60 years of age, or at least over 50, right?

Wrong, says the Medic Alert Foundation, which reports that there were more 19-year -olds among the 60,000 persons who joined its ranks last year than any other age group.

The reasons for joining, in order of frequency, were being allergic to penicillin, diabetes or because they wear contact lenses.

According to founder and president, Dr. Marion C. Collins, the high membership among 19-year-olds, closely followed by 20- and 21-year-olds, is because these are the ages at which people leave home, to go to college, for military service or just to start their own lives. It is at this point that concerned parents choose to enroll them.

Medic Alert currently has more than 400,000 members around the world, with more joining at a rate of better than 1,000 a week. Each member's medical problem is engraved on the back of his Medic Alert bracelet or necklace, along with his membership number and the phone number of the foundation's computerized central answering file in Turlock, Calif., which is available at all times to authorized personnel on a collect-call basis.

WALK, DON'T RUN

"Walk, don't run, to the nearest exit" has been sound advice for the avoidance of panic ever since enclosed buildings became gathering places for people. Today, this same bit of good advice can be appropriately applied to public attitudes toward environmental problems. We have over 200 million people compressed into a comparatively limited space -- the continental United States. We have suddenly become conscious of the smoke and pollution resulting from overcrowding. Many have taken no heed of the trash receptacles and no smoking signs. Yet, they have grown fearful and want out. They are showing signs of panic, which is both futile and self-destructive. Now is the time to realize that we should walk, not run, if we expect to find solutions to environmental problems.

An example of the futility of panic can be seen in the attitude of many toward nuclear energy. They oppose any and all technological advances in the use of the atom to meet energy needs out of fear of alleged radiation hazards. Yet, it is becoming increasingly apparent that electricity from nuclear power plantsts, as well as fossil- fueled power plants, is the most practical answer to many environmental problems.

The director of the Edison Electric Institute, Mr. W. Donham Crawford, had declared that "transportation, air pollution, waste disposal. . . low-cost housing are all areas in which increased use of electric energy can make a substantial contribution . . . . However, there is a danger that the honest concern of people over the potential impact of electric utility facilities on the environment may develop into a serious factor in delaying power plant construction and in meeting the nation's power needs." Technology can solve the problems of our environment if we will but let it lead us -- at a walk -- to the wisest solutions.

Shout Down that 'Quake

When in doubt, scream and shout.

To be specific, a Los Angeles psychologist recommends that the next time you're caught in an earthquake, don't be frightened, be angry. Shout, curse, clench your jaws, shake your fist, stomp your feet and order the earth to stop shaking.

Amazingly enough, it will stop and you will experience an exhilarating feeling of mastery over primeval forces like that of an Indian rain dancer. But more important, says Dr. Donald F. Cowan, you will have mastered the feeling of helplessness, hopelessness and fear that filled people during the Feb. 9 earthquake in California, an experience which still gives many of them the jitters.

He calls it the "angry assertion method."

Shout, curse, shake your fist -- we do it every time we read the headlines about the latest world or domestic crisis and it doesn't seem to help.

But maybe earthquakes are different.

O.K., So 'Woman' It Is

A woman is only a woman but. . what if she's "Man of the Year..?

The Association for Children with Retarded Mental Development was faced with this problem when, for the first time in its 20-year history, a woman instead of a man was selected for its highest annual recognition for outstanding work for the association. Should she be "Man of the Year," like the 19 previous recipients, or "Woman of the Year..?

To help solve the dilemma, the association conducted a poll among members of Congress, the nation's governors and press, radio and television people.

Five per cent said she should be named "Man of the Year." Another five per cent suggested titles like "Person of the Year" or "Human Being of the Year." But 90 per cent voted for "Woman of the Year."

The association thinks the results of the poll might well settle once and for all whether a woman in the House of Representatives is a "congressman" or a "congresswoman," a female member of a state legislature is an "assemblyman" or "assemblywoman" or a woman heading a committee is "chairman" or "chairlady."

Meanwhile, male chauvinists will reflect that a good cigar is still a smoke.

Is Consumerism New?

"The person who buys and eats must protect himself and family, and he had a right to, and now demands, a law under which he can make intelligent selection of food."

This statement was made more than a half-century ago by C. W. Post, president of the Postum Cereal Company, a forerunner of General Foods Corporation.

In 1906, Mr. Post demonstrated the social responsibility of business by placing advertisements in newspapers throughout the country urging passage of the first Pure Food & Drug Bill then being considered by congress. He asked the readers to write their congressmen and senators.

Trend of Cigaret Ads

Sen. Moss will "Head Off" print cigaret ads if the tobacco industry tries "to flood the country" with increased use of outdoor and print media.

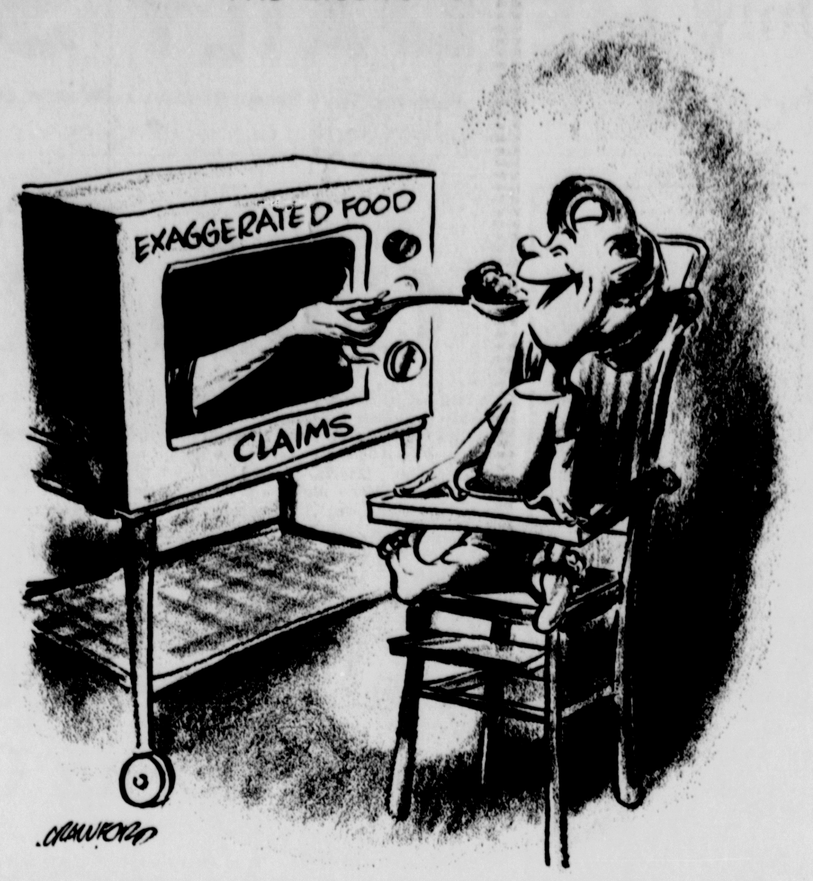

In a speech before the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, Sen. Moss said he will ask the FTC to enforce its regulation requiring tobacco companies to print health warnings if the companies move in this direction.

After an informal survey of newspapers and magazines last year, the Senator said he was "disappointed by the number of newspapers that felt that there should be no inhibition on cigaret advertising, even though the product has been cited as being dangerous to health.

"Unfortunately, publishers who take this attitude may well succumb to the blandishments of the tobacco interests and absorb some of this free floating advertising money," he said.

The Electronic Mother

Just A Myth, Kids

There's a big hassle going on in Merrick, Long Island, over sex education, as in many other places around the country.

In this community, however, 70 parents have signed a petition protesting the expurgation of two chapters dealing with "human sexuality" from a health textbook used by seventh-grade pupils. Not only were 40 pages cut out of the books but reference to the chapters was blacked out on the table of contents.

School authorities say the chapters were expurgated because sex education is not in the curriculum, of course, because many parents sincerely do not want it there.

In the meantime, children seeing the censored table of contents and the gaping hole in their books will not in the slightest be curious about what they are not being permitted to read and lose all interest in this thing called "human sexuality."

STATESMANSHIP
IMPERATIVE

The decade of the 70's will witness a tempering of philosophies and approaches to many questions. A foretaste of the change to come is already observable in the investor - owned electric power industry. Utility managements are faced with considerations that never before existed. These include environmental preservation, the application of nuclear energy, the employment of minority groups, the development of recreation sites and questions of how to keep up, in terms of energy and capital financing, with the population explosion.

As the electric industry looks to the future with new perspective, so should those who have made a political game of baiting the industry and advocating destructive public policies concerned more with garnering votes than creating adequate energy supplies. the chairman of the Federal Power Commission listed what he believes to be the principal policy questions now facing the FPC: ". . .(1) How can utility systems make the most efficient use of the nation's resources in serving the needs of consumers while preserving environmental quality? (2) What operating and regulatory procedures will insure timely installation of needed facilities? (3) What procedures will best insure development of new sources of natural gas? (4) What. . . regulatory actions will best assure continued attraction of capital by utilities at reasonable costs while producing optimum service at a fair price?"

These are all matters that go far beyond the realm of politics, and the smart politician will recognize them for what they are -- the great problems of the 70's that demand the same statesmanship from political officeholders as they do from utility company managements.

Mute Threats on POWs

H. Ross Perot, the Texas multimillionaire, continues to insist that the pressure of public opinion will eventually force North Vietnam to release its American prisoners of war.

"We hold the key to the release of these men in our hands," he told an audience at Baylor University in Waco the other day.

From a cultural point of view, he explained, the North Vietnamese don't think we should want these men back. They consider their own prisoners to be disgraced men. But the good will of the American people is so important and the POWs so unimportant that the North Vietnamese are reluctant to anger the American public.

He notes that 85 per cent of the mail that has been received from the prisoners has come since pressure from the people began.

"You've got to couple persistence with patience to secure their release," says Perot.

In view of this, it may be unfortunate that President Nixon has begun warning Hanoi that some U.S. troops will remain in Vietnam as long as any americans are held prisoner. "Face" is also important to the North Vietnamese.

It will be many months yet before U. S. troop strength in Vietnam approaches a residual, token level. Until that point is reached, perhaps we ought to mute the threats and give public pressure that much more time to work.

EXCESSIVE WAGE
ACCORDS WEAKEN
U.S. COMPETITION

Excessive wage settlements will weaken the U. S. competitive position in foreign markets, and also cost workers some jobs, an industry leader told an American business organization meeting in Montreal.

Such wage rises, unmatched by increased productivity, may prolong American efforts to recover from a debilitating inflation, according to H. C. Lumb, Vice President, Corporate Relations and Public Affairs, Republic Steel Corp., Cleveland who spoke on "Business Looks at Labor changes in the '70s."

Mr. Lumb addressed the annual meeting of the Association of Industrial Advertisers. He called on American industry to support positive moves for labor law reform in the United States in order to counteract decisions by the National Labor Relations Board which encourage union abuse of power.

The speaker pointed out that the record 1969 median wage increase of 22 cents per hour has grown to 24.8 cents per hour in the first 22 weeks of 1970 (almost three times the comparable 1965 figures) and is being used by labor this year "as a plateau from which to demand even higher settlements."

If labor's inflationary wage demands are not controlled, he went on, it will not only result in the loss of American business and jobs abroad but may also provoke such disruptive possibilities as wage - price controls, a consumer revolt that further curtails purchases, and the imposition of some compulsory mechanisms to settle labor-management disputes, which both parties abhor.

TRAVEL--
GOOD INVESTMENT

Americans have probably become the travelingest people on earth, but even this may not be saying much. A lot of the travel that goes on is pretty hum-drum -- commuting to work for example. For every person who really travels -- takes trips to see and learn -- there are thousands who stay at home. And many of them stay at home because they feel it is an extravagance to spend money traveling, or they think the best way to rest during a vacation is to "do nothing."

These and other common shibboleths concerning travel are blown into the far beyond by a fascinating -- and frankly promotional -- feature story advertisement sponsored in The Reader's Digest by half a dozen major airlines and an aircraft manufacturer*. Promotional or not, The Digest has some good answers to the question of, "Should you travel more?" It cites one top clinical researcher who notes that just doing the same thing in the same place day after day after day can be a threat to health. It quotes the president of Life Extension Foundation who says, "Vacations are essential to health. But sitting around home is not enough. Health deteriorates when leisure time is marked by decreased physical activity, by social isolation or lack of mental stimulation."

The Digest story goes on to show how travel broadens opportunities in business and gives the opinions of personnel managers of a number of major companies -- men who feel that travel gives an extra dimension that adds to an individual's ability to make decisions and advance faster. Travel can be a good investment at times, in saving a shaky marriage. It can also change the outlook and improve the scholastic abilities of children.

The Digest does a good job of giving a positive answer, in a highly authoritative manner, to the stay - at - homes who never travel, mainly because they have been inculcated with the old wives tale that it is wasteful and extravagant or that there are better things to do at home. Travel is the antidote to routine, and routine can be deadly. Properly done, travel can contribute to good health and to learning. In short, travel is a good investment.

New-found
'Mad Money'

Everybody gets a raise this year, of sorts.

Thanks chiefly to an end to the income tax surcharge and an increase in personal exemptions, the average American will have to work only two hours and 37 minutes out of an eight-hour day to pay his state, local and federal taxes, reports the Tax Foundation.

Last year the figure was two hours and 43 minutes. That means an extra six minutes' worth of "mad money" every day.

Don't spend it all in one place.

BY THE TRUCKLOAD

It was announced recently that Mack Trucks, Inc., has signed a preliminary agreement to help build the world's largest truck plant in the Soviet Union. The agreement should not receive the required U.S. government approval.

It seems that experience with "aid to the enemy" has not been an adequate teacher in this instance. How could memories be so short that we forget the incredible loss of lives in World War II after our trade with the pre-war Japanese militarists, or even closer to home, the continuing battle in Vietnam, sponsored by the Soviet Union, that kills our soldiers.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in a recent magazine interview, "Before giving away the technology to construct trucks in the Soviet Union, and establishing plants for them, there should be some indication on the part of the Soviet Union that they're not going to continue sending the trucks to North Vietnam by shiploads for use on the Ho Chi Minh trail."

The president of Mack Trucks said he was "a little corned" that the talks between Mack and Soviet representatives would be "blown out of proportion..." We need to be more than "a little concerned" about such an announcement.

Patriots and concerned citizens can help slow the communist tide by writing letters-to-the-editors opposing the Mack Truck project.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The five diseases Americans probably fear most are cancer, heart attacks, strokes, hydrophobia and tetanus, or lockjaw—although not necessarily in that order.

The industrial disease that bothers personnel executives the most, however, is "one-day pneumonia," the custom many employes have of taking an extra day off preceding or following a holiday.

We might easily make a better world if the time we spend disentangling wire coat hangers in closets were put to a more constructive use.

Among the victims of today's price inflation are cabdrivers and restaurant waiters. They complain that many of their customers, instead of tipping 15 to 20 per cent of the bill, are now doling out 10 to 12 per cent. What are resentful patrons going to do when the nation's hatcheck girls start charging four bits to watch their hats, coats and umbrellas?

Practically every U.S. high school pupil used to be able to name the capital and largest city in each of the American states. But today it is doubtful whether two out of five persons over the age of 25 can do so without making at least two to four mistakes.

An old-timer now is anyone who can remember when a first-class letter took only a two-cent stamp—and it was delivered to the recipient before he had aged visibly.

Men's sideburns are reaching such a length that it has become questionable whether they are really sideburns or bears. It would seem fair that when they get so long they get caulht in a fellow's necktie knot they should be classified as whiskers.

The term "middle class" also has become confusing. Caught between rising prices and increasing taxes, the middle class is beginning to feel squeezed out of existence. No guy today really ought to call himself a member of the middle class unless his takehome pay still amounts to at least $5 more a week than he would get if he went on public welfare.

Blondes are reported to have the most fun, but did you ever notice how rarely you meet a red-haired spinster?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- The key to a Vietnam settlement isn't the new communist peace plan so much as the appearance in Paris of North Vietnam's politburo member Le Duc Tho.

He left Paris 14 months ago with the terse announcement that he wouldn't return until he had an agreement in his pocket.

To bring him back, President Nixon has made a number of unpublicized overtures through communist and neutral intermediaries. These secret soundings have now brought Le Duc Tho to Paris.

His appearance definitely is the result of intricate backstage diplomacy. In making the secret arrangements, Hanoi had insisted he talk to someone with more authority than Ambassador David K. E. Bruce. It's no coincidence, therefore, that Le Duc Tho arrived at the same time Harry Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, also scheduled a trip to Paris.

North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris had complained that Bruce was unfriendly. Both of his predecessors, Averell Harriman and Henry Cabot Lodge, had maintained cordial personal relations with the North Vietnamese. But Bruce has been cold and formal.

This is one reason, the intermediaries hinted, that the North Vietnamese have refused to hold secret meetings in the Paris suburbs such as took place under Harriman and Lodge.

BELITTLING BRUCE

Washington has also treated Bruce more as a glorified spokesman than a negotiator. The Paris delegation has been restricted, for example, to the most routine intelligence about the war they are supposed to be settling. The top-secret stuff -- battle plans, position papers, contingency plans and policymaking documents -- aren't sent to Paris.

The air strikes at missile sites and other tactical targets in North Vietnam last November caught Bruce completely by surprise. He received his first word of the attacks from the North Vietnamese.

Annoyed, he directed his military liaison man, Lt. Gen. Julian Ewell, to send an urgent message to the Pentagon requesting more details. Admiral Thomas Moorer, the Joint Chiefs chairman, sent back a Washington Post account of the raids. The reply was regarded in Paris as an insulting message to Bruce, suggesting he should be satisfied with what he reads in the newspapers.

Meanwhile, Le Duc Tho still has no agreement in his pocket,, but meaningful peace negotiations may now be possible.

Footnote: Washington is keeping an anxious eye on Saigon, which in the past has sought to snag the Paris negotiations. This is the reason, apparently, that Kissinger is traveling to Paris by way of Saigon. The U. S. has also taken the precaution, in the past, of intercepting the secret messages between South Vietnam's top people in Paris and Saigon. The South Vietnamese messages that have fallen into our hands have been identified by the code name "Gout." The National Security Agency, which handles secret codes and communications, stamps the intercepted messages "immediate precedence" and sends them by teletype to the White House marked "Exclusive for Dr. Henry A. Kissinger/White House." At the bottom of each message, the date and time of the interception is given.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

HOOVER AND TAMM -- For years, the International Association of Chiefs of Police passed fulsome resolutions in praise of "The Honorable J. Edgar Hoover." It didn't detract from Hoover's glory that the resolutions were quietly prepared by the FBI and approved in advance by its director. But lately, Hoover has been feuding with the IACP's executive director, Quinn Tamm, himself a former FBI official. Hoover's supporters claim that Tamm, botched up almost every top job at the FBI. Tamm's friends say he not only had a great career at the FBI but that Hoover himself recommended him for the IACP job. They say it was only after Tamm began to get personal publicity and to emerge as a rival to Hoover as a law enforcement spokesman that the FBI chief turned against him. It now looks as if Hoover, at last, may win the feud. the IACP'S board is talking about firing Tamm for making "indiscreet statements."

UNDER THE DOME -- Senators Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and George McGovern, D-S.D., two presidential hopefuls who are frequently critical of military spending, didn't bother to show up for the crucial vote on limiting the Pentagon budget to $68 billion . . . . Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., who has a habit of rubbing perfume across his pudgy fingers and dabbing a little on his chin, also has a curious method for sorting mail. He spreads the letters on a table, picks out correspondence from all the notables, and then discards the leftovers. . . Rep. Jim Burke, D-Mass., uses three different form letters thanking his constituents for their "recent correspondence," "recent warm letter" or "recent friendly letter." . . . Sen. David Gambrell's supporters are nervous because one of the new Senator's aides turns out to have a criminal record. The aide, a black named Benny Smith, was convicted two years ago for violation of the state tax law. Gambrell is standing by Smith, who has made restitution to his state. NO FAVORITISM -- Transportation Secretary John Volpe likes to tell this story on himself. Once when he was in a desperate hurry, he found his official plane 18th in line for take-off at New York City's La Guardia Airport. An associate suggested to Volpe, since he's in charge of the Federal Aviation Administration, that he ask his pilot to radio the tower requesting immediate clearance to take off. Volpe gave the order to the pilot who reported back a few moments later: "Mr. Secretary, the men in the tower send you their regards and instructed me to tell you we are still 18th in line for take-off."

Ann Landers

Kids Aren't the Only Ones Who Tell Secrets

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 23, a college graduate and what you would call a quiet, introverted person. He showed very little interest in girls until last year when he started to see a divorced woman with two children.

To my complete surprise they were married in March. This woman is 35 years old, which makes her exactly six years younger than I am. I was not happy about the marriage but I am keeping my mouth shut. Whenever we have a meal together, I get indigestion.

The problem is that my son's wife has started to call me "Mother" which burns me up. My husband thinks it is hilarious. I am nowhere near old enough to be her mother and she knows it. I'm sure she uses this "mother" bit to make me seem older -- and to make herself seem younger. What do you suggest I do about it? -- Not laughing

Dear Not: The next time your son's wife calls you "Mother," get right to the point. Say, "I'd prefer you called me Geraldine. And bet your mother would appreciate it, too."

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old and my problem is myself. I have a big mouth. I tell things I have no right to tell -- such as other people's secrets. It doesn't make any difference that I promise on my word of honor to keep mum. It doesn't even help when I cross my heart and hope to die. I really mean to keep my word, but when I am with someone I want to impress and we get on the subject of secrets, I find myself spilling everything. Afterwards, I get so mad at myself I could bite my tongue off.

How can I overcome this terrible fault? It is very babyish and I know it. I have promised myself at least a dozen times never to do it again. But somehow I just can't keep my big mouth shut. Can you help me? -- Blabbing Without End

Dear Blab: Telling secrets is not a childhood disease. Many grownups are afflicted with the same problem. Kids call it babbling. Adults call it "betraying a confidence," but it's the same thing.

Before you can find a cure, you must recognize the cause. Are you aware of why you do this? It's because it makes you feel important to know something that someone else doesn't know. In other words, you do it to build yourself up. The next time you are tempted to betray a friend, tell yourself, "It is more important to be honorable and trustworthy than to look important for one small minute. I will keep my mouth shut." Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: A girl wrote and asked what her life would be like if she married a compulsive talker. May I be Ann Landers and tell her? I know because I did it.

Dear Girl: You will not have a moment's peace, my dear. He will talk to you while you are reading, watching TV and sleeping. He will talk to you while you are on the phone trying to talk to someone else. He will talk over you and around you.

You will have a nervous breakdown and land in the hospital. When he comes to see you he will say, "Why did you do this to me? I need you at home." Ann Landers says people who talk all the time are sick. She is right. If you marry such a man you will be sick, too. Back away from this nut and marry someone who is normal. -- Sorry I Didn't Know Enough

Dear Sorry: Your letter is most convincing. I hope she listens.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addresed, stamped envelope.

Science In Your Life

By BOB JONES

WESLEY Wharton of Springfield writes for information about the safety of nuclear power generators. "Why has the Atomic Energy Commission stopped approving new nuclear reactors?" he asks.

Atomic energy commission scientists say that power reactors are safe. Power reactors work by generating extremely high temperatures through atomic fission (atom splitting).

Only by carrying this heat away from the reactor core, can we prevent extremely dangerous situations. Consequently, the question has been raised, what happens when a reactor runs out of cooling water?

This has never happened and engineers say that with current reactor design it is not likely to happen. However, concern about this subject has increased rapidly since an AEC experiment that showed that present design for emergency core cooling will not work. In a mock-up reactor, when an emergency was simulated, high steam pressure prevented almost all of the emergency cooling water from entering the reactor.

It remains to be seen whether this is indeed a hazard or whether the test itself was faulty. New tests are being planned.

Because there are thousands and thousands of corn fields in hundreds and hundreds of counties across this country and in other countries the average of all corn fields does not change very much. This allows our UMC agricultural economists Malcolm J. Blackie and Kenneth C. Scheeberger to simulate the growth response of dry land and irrigated corn on paper.

This ability to simulate field conditions has provided these ag economists with impressive research tools. They will not be limited to seasonal or even annual variations or required to comply with normal growth cycles. There will be no cost involved in the planting, maintaining, and harvesting this imaginary research crop.

Where the effects of various practices on the corn crop are already known (from field research), the conclusions to be drawn from modifications of these practices can be quickly worked out by these ag economists. It will all be done at a big saving to tax payers and with important gains to corn producers.

You are aware of the shortage of medical doctors in the United States. It has been estimated that 50,000 more physicians are needed than are available.

At the same time there is a burdensome surplus of physicists, biologists, and men in some engineering specialities. The problem with what to do with this highly trained manpower has caused much worry.

Now Dr. William J. Harrington, chairman of the department of medicine at University of Miami School of Medicine has an answer. He proposes a program to convert these scientists to medical doctors. A course of study has been worked out at Miami whereby qualified Ph.D.s can become MDs within a period of 18 to 24 months. Says Dr. Harrington, "It is our belief that adequate safe guards have been included to preserve high quality in education while responding to the need not only for more physicians, but also for improved utilization of some of our best-trained manpower."

All of your sympathy for animals which are forced to stay outdoors in the extreme of hot weather and cold weather may have been wasted. They are probably better off outside than in many barns.

We mentioned last year the hazards of ammonia gas in confinement livestock barns. This research by staff members of the UMC Dairy department showed that ammonia levels can reach concentrations that are dangerous to the animals that must breathe them continuously in confinement.

In additional work by Harold D. Johnson and Fred Hays of our dairy department, two other chemicals have been indicted. Both of these show up in confinement livestock barns and may also be found in polluted air about us. Sulphur dioxide generates a known hazard in heavy concentration. But what about low levels of concentration?

The UMC researchers worked with laboratory mice to answer this question. They found "continuous exposure to low levels of sulpher dioxide depress feed and water intake, body weight and oxygen consumption and caused upper respiratory damages."

In another study they found that hydrogen sulfide, a product of manure gas, even at low levels produced problems for animals exposed for as little as 48 hours.

You soon may be wearing a garment that was cut out with a laser. Scientists at Hughes Aircraft Company describe their new device as "the first major advance in apparel manufacture since the sewing machine."

Already in use, the unit includes a computer which stores cutting instructions. The laser beam cuts garments one at a time from a single layer of cloth. It is reported to possess amazing speed and much greater accuracy than the old method which cuts garments from many layers at a time.

Recording is Evidence

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

If Charley sold sandwiches, he could have been a drug store. A noncriminal peddler, he was loaded with drugs of all kinds at all times. One time, however, was the wrong time.

In speaking to a prospective customer, he didn't realize that the customer was a police informant who had been wired for sound. Thus, when he told the prospective customer in effect that he could choose from column "A" or column "B," he was promptly arrested as a dope pusher.

And, in court, the recording was used as evidence against him.

"You can't use that electronic stool pigeon against me," protested Charley. "It violates my constitutional rights. The recording was made without my knowledge and consent and without a court order. I've got my rights and that's wrong."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the recording to be used as evidence against Charley?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when a police agent talks to a suspect, he can report the conversation for use in a criminal trial. There is no constitutional difference noted the judge, when the agent, or in this case an informer, either simultaneously records the conversation or simultaneously transmits it to other agents who listen and record it. Under such circumstances, conluded the judge in effect, electronic eavesdropping is permissable without a warrant.

Three Injured In Two Mishaps

Three were injured in two traffic accidents Monday.

At 11:05 p.m. two miles south of Malden on highway 62, a 1969 Oldsmobile traveling west, driven by James Coward, 21, of Campbell crossed the center line, the highway patrol said, and struck an eastbound 1968 Ford driven by Harry Niewald, 20, of St. Francis, Ark.

Coward sustained hand cuts and was taken to Crooms Clinic in Malden for treatment.

Near the Arkansas - Missouri state line on highway 62 west of Campbell at 11:30 p.m., a 1969 Chevevolet going east, driven by Inge Thacker, 33, of Malden, hit water on the highway, the patrol said, went off the road and struck a telephone pole.

The driver sustained face cuts and a passenger, Grabriela Thacker, 13, of Malden, forehead and forearm cuts.

Both were tken to Crooms Clinic for treatment.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

The Lord God took the man and put him in the garden of Eden to till it and keep it. (Genesis 2:15, RSV).

PRAYER: O God, it is our privilege to be in partnership with You. In humility and shame we acknowledge our many shortcomings. We desperately need You, O Father. Increase our desire to cooperate. Amen.

PET DOCTOR

By T.M. Eagle, D.V.M.

CAT DIARRHEA

Question: Our cat has diarrhea and the pills that usually stop this don't seem to work any more. What do you suggest? (Don Kirk, Reading, Pa.)

Dear Don, Diarrhea or uncontrollable bowel action is not a disease. It is an indication of irritation and inflammation of the intestinal tract. Nature is robbing the body of fluids attempting to flush out the irritant. This irritant could be internal parasites, foreign bodies, bacteria and viruses, or foods the animal just can not digest properly. Diarrhea will occur during the course of many disease conditions. The big job is to arrive at an early diagnosis to stop this drain of body fluids. Take a sample of the stool along with your kitty for her appointment with the veterinarian. Many times a simple adjustment in the diet will do the trick. I only hope your kitty has received vaccination against infectious feline enteritis, a very lethal disease among cats. Waste no more time with the ordinary antidiarrheal pills and solutions. (You may send your questions to Dr. Eagle, P.O. Box 1042, Columbia, Mo. 65201)

The World Almanac recalls that Richard Henry Lee proposed a declaration of American independence, June 7, 1776, when he introduced in the Continental Congress a resolution declaring "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved."

MISSOURI has a new flathead catfish record of 94 pounds, 20 pounds over the old record. Ed Chronister, 65, of rural Poplar Bluff, caught the monster on a trotline June 21 in the St. Francis River about a mile below Wappapello Dam. He used a goldfish minnow and a 4/0 hook and took 30 minutes to land the fish by himself. One oddity is that the fish had only one eye and Mr. Chronister himself has but one eye.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) -- Gov. Warren E. Hearnes shot a 36-hold score of 156 last weekend to finish a respectable 14th in the 25th annual Ozark Pro-Am golf tournament.

Hearnes played with three other men from his home town of Charleston, Mo.

He shot rounds of 75 and 81 during play Saturday and Sunday.

New Challenge for Devine

EDITOR's Note: National Football League teams begin checking into training camp this week and with them are two men on the spot—Dan Devine of the Green Bay Packers and Tommy Prothro of the Los Angeles Rams. Highly successful veterans among college coaches but rookies in the pros, Prothro and Devine sat down with Associated Press Sports Writer Mike Rathet and Will Grimsley for a round-table discussion that covered their problems, the problems of their players and the problems of the sport.

By MIKE RATHET
and WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Can two former college coaches improve the level of play in professional football?

Tommy Prothro, who left UCLA for the coaching job with the Los Angeles Rams, and Dan Devine, who stepped into Lombardi country by leaving the University of Missouri for the Green Bay Packers, say they not only can but should— after seeing some pro performances "that a junior high school coach wouldn't put up with."

In this first of a three-part series, both discuss their reasons for accepting their new challenge.

The questions and answers:

Rathet: It would probably be most appropriate if we started by having both of you explain your decision to leave the college coaching ranks for pro jobs, which most people consider less secure.

Prothro: The reason I went into pro coaching is that over the years I've come to decide, contrary to what I thought six or eight years ago, that pro football is bigger than college football.

Rathet: Dan, did you have the same appreciation—that pro football was bigger than college football?

Devine: Basically that would be it. This came down to a decision where I just couldn't say no to it. I didn't say yes right away but it was something I hadn't done, something I wanted to do.

Grimley: Dan, did you have any tropidations, any feeling that in moving from college to pro ball you were getting into water over your head?

Devine: No. If I had that feeling I wouldn't have made the move.

Prothro: On the other hand ... if you move across the street you face a new situation and you always realize that it may turn out a little different from what you've done before.

Grimsley: Bear Bryant Alabama coach said the reason he never went into pro football was because he gets a kick out of developing players and a pro coach gets players already developed. Do you believe a playor is behond development once he becomes a pro?

Prothro: I think a lot of pro people feel this way. But I intend to try and develop players on our team.

Rathet: When you're talking about developing do you mean ...

Prothro: I mean I talked to our football squad and I told them "it may sound strange to you for me to tell you—some of whom are the best or among the best in the world at what you do—but I intend to try and improve the way you are doing it."

Devine: As far as developing players is concerned, you look at film when you are playing an opponent in college and you see some guys pretty weak in fundamentals. Suddenly those people appear on the pro scene, and they're still just as weak in fundamentals. You'd be astounded if I sat down and showed you the film of Green Bay-Chicago. If you took the uniforms off them, you'd see some plays that a junior high school coach wouldn't put up with. Some of the fundamentals are atrocious and if I didn't feel that I could at least correct some of those things I'd be one lousy football coach.

Grimsley: Dan, the old college guys says that pro football is dull, that it's too stylized, whereas college football gives you unpredictability. Is there that great a difference between the kind of football played in college and that played in the pros?

Devine: I'd be less than honest if I didn't say I'm going to miss that goal line stand where the whole student body and the cheer leaders—you know, when everybody is up there yelling. You probably can't copy that. By the same token, in the last five years, I've seen a real trend in the colleges to play the so-called pro game as opposed to what some people call the so-called college game. Five years ago no one we played used the so-called pro defense. Last year we played 11 teams, and nine used the pro defense. So there is more similarity between the games that people think.

Grimsley: How do you feel about that Tom?

Prothro: I think any time you have 26 teams in one category and 1,000 in another the 26 of them are going to be more stereotyped. If there were eight they would be more stereotyped than the 26. There are more college teams so there's going to be more divergence of offenses and defenses. I think the pros have borrowed many of the best things from college football and college football has borrowed many of the best things from pro football.

Bess Featured Speaker

SPRINGFIELD -- Gene Bess, Poplar Bluff's Three Rivers Junior College basketball coach, is among the speakers for the 16th annual Southwest Missouri State College coaching school, Thursday and Friday.

Bess opens the Thursday session at 1:30 p.m. discussing "Man to Man Pressure Defense." He is completing his first year at Three-Rivers with a 27-10 record.

Bess had a 237-93 record as a high school coach.

Oklahoma University basketball coach John MacLeod and Marion Nickel of Rockhurst high in Kansas City are the other featured cage speakers.

Star Squads Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Atlanta's Hank Aaron and San Francisco's Willie Mays, two of baseball's all-time greats, and Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell, the major league leader in home runs and runs batted in, were named today as the starting outfield for the 1971 National League All-Star team.

Aaron, starting for the 12th time and appearing in his 20th All-Star game, was the top vote getter in both major leagues with 1,119,306 votes out of 2,396,895 ballots cast.

Mays, also named as a starter for the 12th time and playing in his 22nd All-Star game, was second in the NL with 1,084,837 votes.

Stargell collected 851,161 votes, far ahead of fourth-place finisher Lou Brock of St. Louis, who had 432,575.

San Francisco will be the only team with two starters for the National Leaguers when they oppose the American League in the classic at Detroit in a night game July 13. In addition to Mays, the Giants' Willie McCovey will be at first base.

Completing the starting NL infield will be second baseman Glenn Beckert of Chicago, shortstop Bud Harrelson of New York and third baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis. The catcher will be Johnny Bench of Cincinnati.

Bench was the only other National Leaguer to granger more than a million votes. He received 1,060,651 in the balloting announced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bench, Aaron, Mays and Beckert are repeaters from the 1970 starting squad.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore led the AL voting with 1,110,468. Picked to join Robinson in the infield were shortstop Luis Aparicio of Boston, second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and first baseman Boog Powell of Baltimore. Ray Fosse of Cleveland was selected as the catcher.

Chosen to start in the outfield were Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Frank Robinson of Baltimore.

Each of the starters selected by fans throughout the United States and Canada must play three innings.

The remainder of the teams, including pitchers, will be named by the managers—Cincinnati Sparky Anderson for the National Leaguers and Baltimore's Earl Weaver for the Americans.

Grid Outlook Bright

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- Southeast Missouri State College's football fortunes have been so good in recent years that it has almost become commonplace for optimism to prevail in the Indian camp.

That was the case last year, and it is generally the case this year, despite the fact that the 1970 squad did not quite meet the coaching staff's expectations.

"We had unexpected difficulties last year which arose from injuries and then inexperience at vital positions such as quarterback and running back," said Head Coach Tom Thrower as he looked back upon a 5-5 overall campaign and a 4-2 MIAA record. The conference mark placed the Indians behind Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg and Northeast Missouri State College of Kirksville. They tied for the title.

It was the first time in three years that Southeast Missouri had not won or shared the loop crown.

Thrower continued, "As a result of injuries there is more experience at practically all positions. We look for our defensive unit to be one of the best in the school's history. Offensively, the passing game should improve because all the receivers and the quarterback have at least a year's experience together.

"The running game could improve, depending on some newcomers, but we averaged over four yards per carry last season and that will be difficult to surpass."

Thrower expects 48 returning players, including 32 lettermen, and 50 newcomers to report to camp on Aug. 22. One indication of the depth which the Indian coaches believe their squad has is that only five of the newcomers will be junior college transfers. And one of the five, Gary Hahn of Des Moines, Iowa is strictly a kicking specialist.

Southeast Missouri lost five hardnosed warriors via graduation -- three were first team all-MIAA picks. Several other Indian gridders who saw considerable action last season have dropped by the wayside for various reasons also.

But for each vacancy in the starting units there seems to be at least one heir apparent. And at a number of positions it seems likely the competition for starting roles will be intense.

Thrower lists his top five returnees as senior fullback Eddie Moss of Poplar Bluff, senior flanker back Art Miller of Kirkwood, senior linebacker, Doug Mackey of Scotchplains, N. J., senior guard Jack Huelskamp of Normandy, and senior defensive back Richard Sanders of St. Louis.

Moss, who led the team in yards gained rushing and in scoring last season, is the only returning Indian on the 1970 first team All-MIAA mythical squad. Sanders and Mackey made the second team.

Miller and Huelskamp won honorable mention in the balloting as did junior end Steve Derringer of Webster Groves, senior linebacker Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve, and senior defensive back John Bean of St. Louis. All of these players bear watching.

Other Indians who could add to a star - studded cast for 1971 include sophomore running back Rich Attig of Murphysboro, Ill., sophomore quarterback Lance Brune of Cape Girardeau, and junior linebacker Kim Godwin of Cape Girardeau.

Attig was pressed into service as a green freshman last season when the MIAA's leading rusher of 1969, Al Holmes of St. Louis, was injured. All the southern Illinois resident did was wind up leading the conference in yards averaged per carry with 6.2.

Brune also got the call to quarterback the club as a freshman and performed admirably, leading the team in total offense with 1273 yards passing and 83 rushing.

Godwin succeeded with his toe, leading the league in punting with a 40.4 average, 12th best in the NCAA College Division.

Also returning to the Indian gridiron this fall is 245-pound defensive tackle Tim Luckett of Bruceville, Ind., a player the pros are interested in. Luckett was injured during the 1969 campaign and underwent a knee operation. Another knee operation was necessary last season and he sat out the year.

The knee seems all right now, according to Thrower, who is beginning his fourth year as the head man at Southeast Missouri. His record is 19-11. His career record, including high school teams, is 55-19-1.

Besides Hahn, other junior college transfers who will report to Southeast Missouri next month are Larry Luster of East St. Louis, Ill., Gary Rohr of East St. Louis, and Dan Peiffer of Harper, Iowa, all tackles; and John McClure of Maplewood, an end.

Fabick batters rocketed four doubles, four triples, and one home run on their way to a 31-0 triumph over Ryan Construction. Twenty-one hits stung the Ryan pitching in the four inning baseball rampage that saw the Fabic runners collect 13 and 17 run innings.

In the nightcap, Sealtest collected a forfeited victory from Ziegenhorn Insurance. Ziegenhorn failed to put nine players on the field.

Five errors, a triple and a home run from McCauley, and five additional hits in the first inning boosted Fabick into an early 13-0 lead. McCauley went four for five at the plate for the Fabick lineup, and collected six runs batted in.

Fabirk's 17 run third inning gave the Fabick squad a 31-8 margin. Four runs in the second and third innings sent the eight Ryan runners home to score.

Sherman and Miller each added three hits to the 21-hit Fabick attack. Mark and Mike Dewitt, Byrd, Stearnes, and Eckles each belted two hits.

Mark DeWitt Stearnes, and Eckles shared the pitching pleasures for the Fabick squad with DeWitt receiving credit for the win.

Couch was tagged with the loss. Ryan's Springs and Coach connected the team's only hits, both doubles.

National League

Legion and Jaycees posted low scoring victories in National League baseball action last night at Puckett Field.

Legion battled Lions to a 4-2 decision in the first contest. Legion hurler Scherer checked the Lion battery to only one hit.

Jaycees handed the Security National Bank a 6-3 loss in the nightcap, highlighted by Lane's home run in the fourth.

Lions bid for a shot at first place took a turn for the worse. They are scrambling to catch Lewis Furniture in the National League race.

After trailing 1-0 in the fourth and 2-0 in the fifth, Legion came up with four tallies in the fifth. Fugate singled to open the inning, with one out, Dock walked, and Cox drove the first run home with as an error was tagged on the third baseman.

Barnett delivered his first home run blast of the year with two men on to send in the final three Legion runs.

Scherer held the Lions to only one hit, a single in the fourth inning off the bat of Medelberg. Scherer fanned 11 batters and walked five in the six inning victory.

Griffin suffered the loss on the mound, giving up five hits, two of which came off the bat of Scherer.

In the nightcap the Jaycees connected six hits, including doubles from Heeb and Lane, and a home run blast from Lane to defeat Security National.

Lanes' two hits accounted for three of the Jaycees' runs batted in with two in the first inning and an additional mark in the third inning, the Jaycees jumped into an early 3-1 lead. Jaycees' final scores came in the third and fourth innings.

McAfee went the distance for the Jaycees to pick up the six inning victory. Young was tagged with the loss.

Manker connected for two of the Banker's four hits.

The new bus station, involving the greater portion of a new building complex built by Don Kellett, is 32 feet by 45 feet, consisting of a modern waiting room and ticket office, and a room for freight and packages.

A total of 650 of the new buses will be in operation in the nation this summer. An additional 350 of the buses will be added before the end of the year.

They are a 47-passenger dual level super cruiser, 40 feet in length, and built at a cost of $64,000 each.

The first Greyhound bus was placed in operation in 1914 when a young Swede could not find a buyer for his seven passenger Hupmobile.

Political Ads Are Getting Nastier

ART BUCHWALD

In the Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON — I don't know if people have noticed it, but TV political commercials are getting nastier and nastier. There was a time when a candidate appeared on the screen and made a one-minute pitch for your vote. But all this has gone by the boards, and now, thanks to the great creative brains of our advertising media, the new approach is to tell the audience what a miserable SOB the candidate's opponent is.

I sat in on a session where the top advertising men were brain-storming a TV commercial campaign for their candidate, Philbus Wurm, who was running for the United States Senate against the incumbent, Senator Allegro Symphony.

This is how it went.

"AS I SEE IT," said the copywriter, "we have to sell the people on Symphony's softness on pornography. Now what I suggest we do is have a woman sleeping in bed, and a guy comes in and rapes her, and the voice-over says, 'These are the people Senator Symphony wants to let into your bedroom'."

"Not enough shock value," the art director said. "How about this? A group of dirty, hairy students sneaks up to a building and plants a bomb. The bomb goes off and the voice-over says, 'Symphony voted for the last education bill'."

"That's not bad," said a vice president. "How about Vietnam?"

"We've been working on that," the copywriter said. "We have some stock footage of a GI platoon attacking Hill 2,331. Then we hear Symphony's voice saying, 'Vietnam was a big mistake,' and the voice-over says, "I'll it to Company D'."

The campaign manager was ecstatic. "Beautiful. You have anything on the economy?"

The art director says, "We have some footage of an unemployment office, and we go in close on a guy who is holding his check, and we say, 'Why are you out of a job?' and he says, 'Because Senator Symphony closed the naval base. Then we show a guy putting the guy's furniture out in the street."

"That's great," a vice president said.

THE ART director said, "I think you'll like this one. It portrays Washington going up in a mushroom cloud and then a bunch of Soviet officers laughing. The voice- over says, 'Senator Symphony voted against the ABM'."

"It's dirty, but it will sell," the campaign manager laughed.

"But what about our candidate, Philbus Wurm?" someone asked. "Don't you think we ought to make one commercial with him in it?"

"Hell, no. If anyone sees that idiot on TV, we'll lose all our votes."

HEARNES SIGNS LAST OF APPROPRIATIONS BILLS

JEFFERSON CITY — Gov. Warren E. hearnes gave the Missouri legislature a taste of its own medicine as he signed the last of the appropriations bills in the $1.7 billion 1971-72 budget last week.

The governor struck $57,015 from the appropriation for the Legislative Fiscal Affairs Committee and $36,484 from the money appropriated for the Legislative Research Committee.

And, in a one-two punch, Hearnes let stand a requirement that the Fiscal Affair committee must give prior approval to any expenditures by the General Assembly, but exercized his line veto power to delete this requirement from all other state agencies.

His action was seen as a retaliation aginst the legislature for some $31 million in cuts its had made in his budget recommendations.

In his veto message, Hearnes said the economy theme used by the legislators in acting on his budget recommendations for various state agencies should be applied to the legislature as well.

"Throughout the 76th General Assembly, the theme of economy was stressed and additional programs were limited to present levels of service and expenditures," "Hearnes said. "It is my belief that in order for this philosophy of government as expressed by the General Assembly to be consistent and fair to all concerned, the same formula must be applied (to these committees)."

The vetoes left the Legislative Research committee, the department which drafts proposed laws, with $271,515, and Fiscal Affairs, a fact-finding agency on money matters, with $77,985. Both were in line with the governor's original recommendations.

Most of the money cut from the two staff committees' budgets was for additional employes.

In other action on the budget, Hearnes signed a bill retaining the pay raises for state employes effect July 1. Those earning less than $5,400 annually will receive a 15 per cent increase; those earning from $6,888 to $8,400 will receive a 5 per cent increase All other salaries not set by law will be raised a flat $300 annually.

Hearnes also vetoed language in an appropriation bill designating the funds for the state to insure itself for injury claims by state employes.

State law requires employes of certain agencies to be covered by a state self- insured program, but some 15,000 workers are covered by a common carrier policy which does not expire until Jan. 1, 1973.

State Comptroller John C. Vaughn said that because it would mean the loss of $160,000 in accrued credits, it would not be wise financially to cancel the policy with Insurance Consultants, Inc.

The Clayton insurance firm is headed by Stephen Kling, an honorary colonel on the governor's staff and Sidney Salomon, Jr., former Democratic National committeeman, is one of its brokers.

Also signed by the governor was the Medicare Health Services Act which expands coverage under Medicare. This was required by the government in order for the state to retain its almost $180 million a year federal welfare aid payments.

VIEW ON LUTHERANISM

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Lutheranism "has elevated the quest for social justice from its previous subordinate position to a central tenet of Christian ethics," says the president of the Lutheran World Federation.

The Rev. Dr. Mikko E. Juva of Finland told churchmen here that Lutheranism need to concentrate entirely on "individual sins" but now sees the struggle for social justice as an urgent task of the churches.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Child Should Know About the Family

Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have been married twice and have two children. I lost my first husband and my daughter is from that marriage. I now have a little boy from my second marriage. My little girl is 4½ years old and my first husband's parents often come to see her. She is too little to understand what really happened to her daddy but her grandparents seem to want to tell her things about him and she is a very mixed-up little girl. I have asked them not to say anything to her but it seems that they don't care to keep quiet. What can I do?

Dear Reader — The simplest thing in most complex situations is just to tell the truth. I think you have to be honest with children and this begins from the time they are old enough for you to have any verbal communication with them at all. Eventually, they will find out the truth and usually this is not as great a shock as finding out that they have been deceived by their loved ones.

I don't mean that it is necessary to go into traumatic details, but I think all questions should be answered as simply and directly as possible. Your problem reminds me of what sometimes happens to adopted children. They do very well when they are told from birth that they are adopted. but if they are not and learn the truth later in life, they often have a very severe emotional shock. I presume that your little girl does know that her real father is dead and, certainly, it is better that she understands this early in life.

Children are often much stronger than their parents realize. I believe that if you follow the course of just being truthful and honest there really shouldn't be any problem about what the child's grandparents tell her.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am a 40-year-old woman with a weight problem. Can I reduce safely by consuming liquids only—such as juices and broth? I take one high-potency vitamin tablet daily and one organic iron tablet with vitamin B-12 three times a day. It is much easier for me to lose weight this way than it is by eating foods. I always end up with too many calories.

Dear Reader—You probably can lose weight that way, depending on what is in your juice and broth. I don't recommend it particularly, unless you are under a physician's care. Any weight you lose will probably come right back after you resume your usual eating habits. Clearly, you can't live on juice and broth forever. The key to weight control, as opposed to a fad diet—gain a little is a basic change in living habits. This includes what you eat and how much physical activity you do. Why don't you just cut out the fat, the sugar and the bread and walk a mile each day? Then see where you are in about three months.

To make a passenger automobile tire takes more than 50 ingredients, including fabric, rubber, steel, carbon black, oil and chemicals.

Who Cares About The Public

By David Lawrence

IT APPEARS INCREDIBLE that one of the most important operations in our national economy – the relations between management and labor -- seems to have been put outside of the scope of Government, leaving private groups free to exercise vast power. Limitless damage can be done innocent citizens who are not parties to any dispute but who must suffer the consequences of interrupted transportation or a shutdown of industries essential to their welfare.

Should any group be permitted to cause delays in delivery of the mails?

Should labor unions be free to make demands that are unfair and economically unsound?

Should management resist the granting of wage raises that are fully justified and which can be paid without impairing the financial status of the employer?

Who is going to decide such issues? Today it requires a battle between management and labor based upon the threats of a long struggle or a strike. Collective bargaining is often a hassle in which each side attempts to bluff the other. In the end the public suffers.

When there is so much at stake, why doesn't the Government set up its own apparatus --judicially minded tribunals which can examine the economic status of companies and the reasonableness of the demands made by labor, and then render a decision binding upon both parties?

This, of course, would introduce an element of governmental compulsion which has long been opposed. Yet the disaster of economic collapse can be far worse, and indeed may be coming as year after year labor and management fight each other without any real progress toward a more satisfactory means of settling their disputes.

Congress has passed laws which require a "cooling off" period in certain labor disputes, but the effect has been simply to postpone the day of reckoning. The labor unions merely defer action and do nothing until the moratorium is ended. Plainly, what is needed is a governnmental agency that both the labor unions and management will recognize as fully authorized to make decisions through specially created boards of arbitration, whose rulings will be final.

It has been argued that labor does not have to accept such settlements and that many workers would not [illegible] their jobs. But the federal statutes could well provide that anyone who defied the law would not retain any employment rights in a particular company or industry involved in the dispute. Sooner or later, both sides would discover that obedience was the better course.

Arthur F. Burns, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, in a recent speech drew attention to the inflationary results of excessive wage increases in the past few years. He said:

"Nor is the end of this explosive round of wage increases yet in sight. Next year, contracts expire in such major industries as steel, aluminum, copper and cans. If contracts in those industries are patterned on recent agreements in the construction industry -- or, for that matter, in the trucking and automobile industries -- heavy upward pressures on prices will continue."

Mr. Burns declared that further steps may prove necessary to slow the rise in wages which is pushing up costs and prices. Numerous measures, he said, might be taken "to improve the functioning of our markets," including "compulsory arbitration of labor disputes in industries that vitally involve the public interest."

The question arises as to how far governmental intervention might extend. Authority could be given to an arbitration agency to set up boards of its own to take action whenever a strike of "major" proportions is threatened. This might be defined as one that would interfere seriously with the working of the economy and would be likely to inflict heavy losses on a large number of innocent persons.

Congress has a duty and responsibility to protect the nation against such disasters as an interruption in the mail service or a collapse of rail transportation -- in fact, against a nationwide strike in any essential industry. These occurrences affect employers and employes, and also impair the progress of the economy itself. The ill effects are felt by millions of citizens.

Poignant Story Of a Couple's Mountain Retreat

BLACK SUN. By Edward Abbey. Simon & Schuster. $5.95.

Will Gatlin had become a loner, a dropout from life.

Six years ago, when he was 31, he had fled from a teaching job in the East, and from a marriage that ended in divorce. He had gone to the mountains of the Southwest, where for six months a year he was a forest ranger, manning a fire-watch tower in a lonely spot.

Then there arrived on the scene a little 19-year-old sprite named Sandy MacKenzie, who also was fleeing from something — an uncertain engagement with a young Air Force cadet.

Could there be a spark between a disenchanted older man and a girl who is not yet mature? There could, and the author of this novel makes the situation credible.

So this is a story about their affair — how he initiates her into sex, how they explore the wilderness, how they discover the nuances of a relationship that may not last. It also is a tragic story, and a poignant one.

Abbey, something of a loner himself, has written one other book, an account based on his experiences in the Arches National Monument. This is his first novel, and he is very good at it. He weaves the narrative back and forth through time, but not in a way to confuse the reader.

How can men be so vague? I swear, all it takes to make a man happy is a fairly clean house to come home to; a good meal on the table three times a day to come home to; a comfortable divan after a hard game of golf to come home to; and clean sheets & a smiling wife in the evening. No wonder so many women commit suicide, its the constant day to day grind of living with such bovine individuals that finally makes a gal just flip her lid!

For example, the other day (one of many such days I might add) Charles came home late in the afternoon after having only spent six hours on the course with the other little boys he plays with, plops his fat torso down (since the advent of the golf cart I've yet to behold a slim golfer) in his new easy chair for sleeping after golf games & did just that! I looked at him snoring for as long as I could stand it & then I quietly went beserk & when my beserk stopped being so quiet & got loud enough to (such bad manners on my part), awaken him, here was the resulting conversation and I quote—

"What the hell's the matter with you?" "Nothing!" "Well somethings the matter you're not acting normal – whats wrong?" "If you don't know by now you never will!"

"Well I don't, so whats eating you?" "I'm just so happy I'm delerious!" "Happy – oh good," he says as he slowly lowers his eyelids & his bottom back into his chair (which I think I am going to burn tomorrow!). "Of course I'm happy," I shriek, "what woman wouldn't be happy who sits home day after day, doing nothing but being a maid – and by the way the pay is terrible!!!!" "Here we go again," he sighs. "What have you done today thats so awful?" "Nothing much," I say, "in between being wined & dined by my two most ardent lovers I've managed to wash the clothes, change the sheets, cook two meals, take the boys swimming, take Lee out to his new paper route and in generally when I wasn't working my tail off I was bored – bored – BORED!!" "Well, he says, if you're that tired why don't you go on up to bed as soon as you've finished feeding everyone dinner tonight and go to sleep, the boys & I will put ourselves to bed later on!"

Now dear readers, isn't that touching? I mean that is true comprehension on his part if I ever saw true comprehension on anyone's part. Just go on to bed if you're that pooped sweetheart; and when I finally give out like the ole grey mare I guess then he'll just send me off to a glue factory and that will be that!!!

Timothy Leary Held For Extradition

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss authorities are holding LSD advocate Timothy Leary for extradition to the United States.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said today that Leary, who escaped 10 months ago from a California prison where he was serving a sentence for marijuana possession, was arrested Wednesday at the request of the U.S. Embassy.

The spokesman said Leary was arrested at Villars sur Ollon, in the Lake Geneva area, and was taken to a jail in Lausanne. His wife was with him but was not taken into custody.

Sources in Europe said the former Harvard lecturer was en route from Algeria to Geneva when arrested.

Leary, 50, was taken into "provisional custody for extradition" and was not charged with any violation in Switzerland, the spokesman said. He added that Leary can be held for two months while the extradition request is awaited.

In California, a spokesman for Gov. Ronald Reagan said the required papers would be forwarded to the U.S. State Department.

Leary escaped from the minimum security California Men's Colony at San Luis Obispo shortly after his parole was denied. He had been sentenced by a California judge in December 1969 to six months to 10 years imprisonment.

He fled to Algeria and took refuge with the fugitive Black Panther Leader Eldridge Cleaver and other members of the militant group. But last February Cleaver said he had placed Leary and his wife in protective custody and that the Panthers had withdrawn support from Leary's psychedelic movement because "his mind has been blown by acid."

Leary also faces a 10-year prison sentence in Texas for smuggling marijuana into the United States from Mexico.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM...

I am pleased to announce today my co-sponsorship of the proposed Farm Credit Act of 1971. Hearings on the proposed legislation will begin on July 12 before the House Committee on Agriculture.

The Farm Credit System over the years has been the primary and sometimes sole source of financial aid to rural citizens. The System has evolved from a series of laws passed by the Congress, beginning in 1916. The precautionary limitations incorporated at that time are now inhibiting the extension of the amount and types of credit, and the flexibility needed by the modern farm community.

One new area of credit extension will be in the field of rural residence financing. The Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks will be authorized to make loans in this area for the building, buying, improving, and repairing of non - farm rural homes. This provision will allow the Farm Credit System to contribute in a new way to rural development. This service will fill a gap between areas served by savings and loan associations and the areas served by subsidized credit for public housing and the Farmer's Home Administration low income borrowers' loans.

This bill will also provide for the financing of farm related services such as custom spraying, pruning, and harvesting.

Permission will be granted to the Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks to own and lease necessary facilities and equipment as needed by eligible borrowers, enabling farmers to have use of infrequently used, but valuable and expensive machines and buildings.

For the Federal Land Bank specifically, this bill would remove the restriction which limits loans to sixty -five percent of the farm's appraised value, thus creating a greater flexibility in mortgage lending. This step will place more of the new loan responsibility on the Bank, and will undoubtedly be important to young farmers as they seek adequate financing for their new enterprises.

Sound security other than first mortgage on real estate would be acceptable in certain situations, thereby making credit available for long term credit needs. Much needed flaexibility would be provided when the farmer has clear repayment capacity and additional collateral to supplement rural real estate.

It should be noted that my bill does not extend the operation of the Federal Farm Credit System to financially related services, as has been proposed by some. Examples of such services are estate planning and record keeping. I feel that such an extension would be carrying the system too far. Estate planning and record keeping are functions equally essential for business and professional people. There is nothing about those services which are peculiar to farmers. These are fields more appropriately left to our conventional lending institutions. Furthermore, I believe that if we take our Federal Farm Credit System so far afield, there will be an irresistible demand from the public to terminate the preferential taz status enjoyed by our Federal Farm Credit System. I am in accord with the Administration on this point and subscribe to the statement of Under Secretary of Agriculture Phil Campbell made before the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry's Subcommittee on Agricultural Credit on May 20, 1971:

The Administration has reservations about the possible imbalances in the competitive relationships between private lenders and the Farm Credit System which could result from the Farm Credit System entering into new fields of lending and services while maintaining current tax exemptions.

I am convinced that the next decade will be a crucial time for funding the lending operations of the Farm Credit Banks. Both political and economic factors promise a degree of competition by borrowers in the money and capital markets heretofore unknown to the Farm Credit System. In the past ten years the debt of the Farm Credit System has tripled. The total of all securities outstanding was less than 10 million dollars in 1960, but now is nearly forty million dollars. This trend is expected to continue. To meet this need, the Farm Credit System must be modernized and made more responsive to the American farming community which it is designed to serve.

P.S. FROM BARBARA...

After a lapse of over 30 years, Mrs. Nixon has reinstated a White House tradition, and I'm glad I was here to be invited and involved. This spring, she hosted a series of three luncheons for the wives of Members off Congress.

There can be nothing more elegant than a White House luncheon, and I might add, more filling. This was no dainty "salad luncheon". The main course was a delicious seafood dish in crepes, fresh buttered asparagus, hearts of palm salad, and the most enormous cream puff filled with a light custard and absolutely smothered with whipped cream.

The mood of the luncheon was elegant, but very informal. The entertainment was the Marine Corps Strolling Strings, and they are always delightful.

We were served coffee in the Blue Room, and Tricia joined our group for a short time. At that point, early in May, she was busy with wedding preparations.

I hope this is one reinstated tradition that continues because a White House luncheon is a delightful experience.

Paul Flowers Greenhouse

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;

He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment-seat:

O, be swift, my soul, to answer Him! Be Jubilant my feet!

Our God is marching on.

In all our tradition, there is no more stirring passage than these lines from Julia Ward Howe's "Battle-Hymn of the Republic," in my estimation the most moving patriotic song ever written.

Yet I must reserve a photo-finish place for the final stanza of Franics Scott Key's "The Star-Spangled Banner":

O, thus be it ever when free men shall stand,

Between their loved homes and a war's desolation,

Blest with vict'ry and peace, may this heav'n-rescued land,

Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, when our cause, it is just,

And this be our motto,—"In God is our trust."

And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave,

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

On a portable desk which he had built with his own hands, Thomas Jefferson drafted the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia, after a committee, composed of John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Robert R. Livingston and Roger Sherman, had been named to express the will of the Continental Congress to the effect that "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is, and ought to be, totally dissolved."

Jefferson, no Anglophile, inserted into his rough draft: "...(The) King of Great Britain kept open a market where men were bought and sold, and prostrated his negative by suppressing Virginia's legislative attempts to restrain this execrable commerce."

Congress struck this from the document.

John Adams, a delegate to the Continental Congress (he defended British soldiers who fired into the mob during the riot which has been called "the Boston Massacre," and later became president) said of the Declaration of Independence:

"I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward evermore."

The fact that Thomas Jefferson, author and signer of the Declaration, and John Adams, a signer, both later to become presidents of the United States, died on July 4, 1826, each rejoicing "that the other yet lives," appears more than mere coincidence.

On a lighter note, it is amusing how saints and patriots confuse the Declaration and the Constitution. Frequently some misinformed character will refer to the massive signature of John Hancock on "the Constitution"; indeed, I have actually heard quoted what the speaker fondly believed to be the Preamble to one or the other, in these sonorous words:

"Fourscore and seven years ago..." but that passage also has been attributed to the Bible.

JULY 4, 1968

The time "was neither wrong nor right,"

Said one "acquainted with the night."

The time is neither wrong nor right

It's less than perfect day and night.

Our nation's supped on chaos pure

Sick sorrow's rule we do endure.

As the bells peal on this great day

Let's hope to lighten dire dismay.

Our flag means courage all the night

Let's let it wave in the sun's light.

Trade With China More Negative

The Committee of One Million (Against the Admission of Communist China to the United Nations)

In late December, the U. S. State Department announced the liberalization of rules restricting American trade with Communist China as follows:

1. Foreign subsidiaries of U. S.-owned firms will henceforth be permitted to engage in trade with communist China on non-strategic items. For example, a subsidiaryof a U. S. firm in Canada or Europe could sell trucks or radios to Peking and buy from it soybeans or tungsten.

2. Restrictions were eliminated requiring U.S. firms or banks to obtain certificates of origin on "Chinese" goods to distinguish, for example, between goods produced in mainland China and Hong Kong.

3. The $100 limit was removed on the purchase of Communist Chinese goods by Americans (tourists, librarians, etc.) for non-commercial use.

A State Department spokesman described the actions as "a small step-- not a great leap forward." He added that the relaxations were unilateral.

To date, there has been no response from Communist China nor any indication as to whether it will seek trade with the foreign subsidiaries of U. S. firms.

The Committee of One Million is certain that these diplomatic moves were made in good faith and believes that they should not be interpreted as an abandonment of our position against the recognition of Communist China or opposition to its admission to the United Nations.

Nevertheless, the Committee is firmly convinced that the certain disadvantages of these initiatives far outweigh the possible advantages.

Psychologically, such unilateral actions by us will only encourage the truculence and intransigence of Communist China. As one Asian observer commented:

"Look at what the U. S. spent to get to the moon. And Mao Tse-tung just sits there and the moon (that is, the United States) comes to him."

Economically, we can expect to benefit only very slightly. The products and produce which Communist China can export are not what the U. S. needs most.

In contrast, the moves are certain to dishearten the Republic of China, the 20 million overseas Chinese and our other Asian allies such as South Korea, South Vietnam, Thailand, the Philippines, Malaysia, and Indonesia.

The moves are certain to encourage Japan and other countries to increase their dealings with Red China and thereby help it out of its difficulties. They will also have their impact upon the people of Mainland China, who want the Mao regime to be weakened not strengthened in its hold on them.

When you weigh the possible hypothetical gains for us against the certain and serious losses, you are obliged to conclude that the U.S. moves to liberalize trade with Communist China will hinder, not enhance, the prospects for freedom in mainland China and all of Asia.

Oldest military organization in the United States is the Society of the Cincinnati, founded by officers of the Continental Army in 1783.

$300,000 Recreational Development

By JUDY STROUP

MALDEN -- Who says there are no recreational activities available in Southeast Missouri? Certainly not the I. L. Williams family, who have developed a resort area five miles west of Malden on highway J that will rival any in the region.

The Crowley's Ridge Resort is nestled in wooded hills.

The mainfeatures of the resort are two lakes. The larger 60-acre lake, named Lake Devosia after Williams' wife, is designed for skiing and boating. An excursion boat will ply the waters of the ski lake from 6 p.m. - 10 p.m. each night.

Dinner will be served aboard, and the floating restaurant will be available for private parties from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. The boat is in its final phase of construction.

The 25-acre fishing lake is stocked with bass, crappie, channel catfish, and bluegill. A bait shop is nearby, and boats can be rented. The resort also offers fish for sale, and after purchasing a permit, a fisherman does not need a license. There is no charge for fish caught.

A swimming area with 400 feet of beach covered with white Florida sand is available. Williams said that two licensed lifeguards are on duty at all times.

A large bathouse with dressing rooms for swimmers' convenience is adjacent to the swimming area.

Facilities for campers include a trailer park with hookups, an area for tents, hot showers, picnic tables, firewood for sale, and even workship services on Sunday.

A motel with five air conditioned units with kitchenettes and television will be expanded.

There is a scenic hiking trail through wooded hills.

Williams said work on the resort began in March of 1969. Development cost, discounting land, which Williams already owned, was $300,000.

Customers pay at the entrance gate for use of facilities.

"We have had 900 to 1200 paid customers per weekend since we opened May 1," Williams said.

The resort will probably remain open until the first of December, and then close until March or April.

Williams has a strict "no excessive drinking or profanity" rule. Speed limit is 15 miles per hour and is enforced. No glass bottles are allowed in the swimming area.

Voter Registration Goal

NEW MADRID—Young Republicans began a petetion drive Tuesday to secure 1,335 signatures requesting voter registration in New Madrid county.

The 1,335 signatures which constitutes 15 per cent of the official vote cast in the 1968 governor's race, is the number of names required by Missouri law for such a petetion.

"Voter registration," said Tim O'Herin, president of the Young Republicans, "must become a law in New Madrid county, if freedom of elections are to be guaranteed."

See-Mor Wants $1 Added

Council Refuses Increase

A request by See-Mor Cable TV to raise the monthly customer subscription charge from $5 to $6 was turned down unanimously by the city council Tuesday night.

Councilman Chuck Grant said before voting on See-Mor's request that he was "irritated the city brought it around."

"The pulse rate of the people is no, don't raise it," Councilman Don Fulton commented.

Mayor Shell said he believes the reason the See-Mor franchise asked for a raise was because "the rising cost of living and expenses were more than they expected."

He said the franchise has been granted six or seven extensions on a monthly basis. He said the franchise pays the city approximately $350 for each month they are not in operation.

"As I understand it, the franchise should be in operation within the next 30 days," Shell commented.

A resolution was passed by the council authorizing the city to proceed with its application for federal funds to help the city build a recreational complex on the airport grounds.

An ordinance was passed for the rezoning of a 10-acre tract of land on the corner of Linn Street and North Ingram Road from A single family district to D commercial district.

An ordinance was passed to improve a 10-lot subdivision of Clayton Heights, north of Murray Lane.

An ordinance was passed to vacate Franklin Avenue from Allen Boulevard to Baker Lane.

The last available five per cent beer license was granted to Super D Drugs.

F. Edward Watson was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Richard Leslie on the Public library board.

Charles D. Long, Boy Scout executive, presented film slides at the meeting explaining the program of exploring.

Miner Trustees Approve 20 Cent Tax Increase

By JUDY STROUP

MINER -- The town board last night approved a 20-cent hike in the real, personal, and mixed property tax, and established fees for business licenses.

Previously, Miner charged 30 cents on each $100 assessed property valuation. The new rate is 50 cents, which is the maximum the law allows for towns and villages.

Before voting on the proposal, Mayor Milton Sadler, said, the increase "would help future projects."

Two opposed the proposal.

The additional revenue, estimated to be $700, will be added to the general revenue fund.

"We need to start having funds to plan with. People who have donated services in the past will not continue to do so as the demand for services grows," Philip McGill, board member, said.

Harold Lewis disagreed.

"My position is not to take all I can get from the citizens, but to guard the 30 cents that I do get from them," he said.

The board approved these business license fees, effective immediately: $50 plus $1 per room for hotels and motels, $25 for automotive garages and body shops, $50 for amusement businesses $50 for indoor fruit markets, $5 for custom woodwork shops, and $50 for retail grocery businesses, all operating inside the town of Miner.

Failure to pay a license fee will be a misdemeanor, and the owner of the business will be subject to a fine of not less than $5 and not more than $100.

Thirteen realtors doing business in Miner, who were billed last year for business licenses, will not be billed this year. Only two paid the fee last year. Four were in favor of exempting the realtors. Lewis abstained.

In other board action, the salary of the caretaker of the water plant was raised from $60 to $80 per month.

Two Held on Car Theft

CHARLESTON--Lindy Williams, 30, of East Prairie, and Rodney Sandlin, 24, Sikeston, are being held for investigation in connection with the theft of a 1963 Chevrolet sedan, owned by Henry Fox of 209 Hunter St., Charleston.

Fox reported his car stolen at 10:41 p.m. Tuesday. The car was recovered by Charlie Jones of the East Prairie police at 11:21 p.m. Tuesday on highway 105, two and a half miles west of East Prairie.

Authorities said that Williams was driving the car when the two were apprehended. Sandlin was reported by police to have jumped from the car and to have fled from the officer. He was later picked up in the vicinity walking along the highway.

Williams told the authorities during questioning that he did not know the car was stolen but thought the vehicle belonged to Sandlin.

Nixon Visit to K.C. Includes Call to Truman

KANSAS CITY (AP) -- President Nixon's brief stop in Kansas City Tuesday included a telephone call to former President Harry S. Truman.

White House aides said Nixon asked the former president about Mrs. Truman, who has been undergoing tests at Kansas City's Research Hospital for more than two weeks.

The President was here to speak to news executives from Midwestern states.

TOILET PAPER AND TOOTHPASTE were smeared over shrubbery and windows at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mather, 724 Mimosa, Tuesday.

Vandals Smear Paper and Toothpaste

Police received a call from Mrs. Robert Mather, 724 Mimosa, at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday reporting their home had been vandalized.

Shrubbery around the home was covered with toilet tissue, the side and back windows smeared with toothpaste. Tissue was stuck to the toothpaste.

The Mather family had gone to the public library after noon and returned home at 1:30 p.m.

"I have no idea why anyone should bother our home," Mrs. Mather said.

Early in the spring serveral homes on Mimosa street were vandalized when eggs were thrown against them.

Other Problems Discussed

New Madrid Speeds Are Uniform

NEW MADRID -- A model traffic ordinance was adopted by the city council Tuesday night. Sewer problems, bond issues, power plant construction, and complaints by citizens were discussed.

The ordinance sets speed limits for city streets and state and federal highways within the city limits. Speed limits on all city streets were set at 25 miles per hour, state route U was 40 miles per hour, and U. S. highway 61 limits were set at 40 miles per hour from the north city limits south to Scott Street intersection, 40 miles per hour from intersection of Scott Street south on highway 61 for nine-tenths of a mile, 45 miles per hour for 1.77 miles, and 55 miles per hour to the west city limits.

A 30 miles per hour limit was set on Scott street from highway 61 to Crisler street.

The council, discussed making a three-way stop at the intersection of Scott street and highway 61.

The ordinance provides a maximum penalty of $100 fine and up to 30 days in jail for failure to observe traffic regulations.

City Administrator Russell Ellis told the council that the engineering firm of Alex Waters and Associates, of Sikeston was preparing an engineering cost estimate for the proposed sewer extension to the residents of the Billy Goat Hill area.

Ellis also said that the sale of $250,000 in sewer and water revenue bonds was being advertised.

A complaint from Paul Halford that beer drinkers were littering his drive-in premises was heard and his request for police assistance in catching offenders. He was advised that he could file complaints against the violators.

Also heard was a complaint that users of a pay telephone in front of the telephone company office at 535 Virginia were parking on private premises and obstructing traffic on the street which has a no-parking area from Main Street to Powell Street.

Permission was granted for the parking of a trailer on a lot at the rear of 1300 Davis Street provided that the land was subdivided and proper water and sewer easements given.

Construction bills totalling $5,620,035.16 for power plant construction at St. Jude Industrial Park were approved. Payrolls at the plant were approved for the week ending June 25, $388,128.93, and the week ending July 2, $410,601.26.

Fragrance at Charleston

CHARLESTON -- Police said today there have been complaints from residents about skunks roaming the streets, yards, and stinking up the place.

A dead skunk was found run over by a car on South Main street and another dead skunk was found run over on East Marshall street.

A complaint was received by police of boys dragging a skunk down a street hooked on the back of a car.

"As of yet, it hasn't got out of hand," Chief of Police Stanley Mungle said. He said there were more complaints this year than last year.

Mungle mentioned one solution offered by a Charleston resident:

Put fish out in a yard. All the skunks would come to eat the fish and then you could kill them all with a shotgun.

IN PRAISE OF MONEY

Money has been called the root of all evil, but John D. D. Sheridan, the Irish writer, figures out it also accomplishes much good. The man who says he is not fond of money must be either a saint or a liar. He is most probably the latter, for much of the work done by saints takes a lot of money.

You cannot build housing for the homeless with hope alone, and even missionaries must have sun helmets and airplane tickets. You have to put something in your basket before you go out to feed the hungry, and if you are to bind wounds you must have bandages.

People sometimes say that "money is not everything," forgetting that nothing is everything neither wealth nor beauty nor intelligence nor character nor good health. The old song, "The best things in life are free" is just a song, and it is becoming harder and harder to sing for your supper.

Money speaks for you in faraway places. A farm in Colorado can buy what you need in London, provided you convert some of the crop into money.

There is nothing shameful in being fond of money, if you keep your values in line. If you are fond of helping people with your money, instead of just wanting it for power, more money and more power to you!

Those Ailing 19-Year-Olds

Persons with hidden medical problems are most likely to be over 60 years of age, or at least over 50, right?

Wrong, says the Medic Alert Foundation, which reports that there were more 19-year -olds among the 60,000 persons who joined its ranks last year than any other age group.

The reasons for joining, in order of frequency, were being allergic to penicillin, diabetes or because they wear contact lenses.

According to founder and president, Dr. Marion C. Collins, the high membership among 19-year-olds, closely followed by 20- and 21-year-olds, is because these are the ages at which people leave home, to go to college, for military service or just to start their own lives. It is at this point that concerned parents choose to enroll them.

Medic Alert currently has more than 400,000 members around the world, with more joining at a rate of better than 1,000 a week. Each member's medical problem is engraved on the back of his Medic Alert bracelet or necklace, along with his membership number and the phone number of the foundation's computerized central answering file in Turlock, Calif., which is available at all times to authorized personnel on a collect-call basis.

WALK, DON'T RUN

"Walk, don't run, to the nearest exit" has been sound advice for the avoidance of panic ever since enclosed buildings became gathering places for people. Today, this same bit of good advice can be appropriately applied to public attitudes toward environmental problems. We have over 200 million people compressed into a comparatively limited space -- the continental United States. We have suddenly become conscious of the smoke and pollution resulting from overcrowding. Many have taken no heed of the trash receptacles and no smoking signs. Yet, they have grown fearful and want out. They are showing signs of panic, which is both futile and self-destructive. Now is the time to realize that we should walk, not run, if we expect to find solutions to environmental problems.

An example of the futility of panic can be seen in the attitude of many toward nuclear energy. They oppose any and all technological advances in the use of the atom to meet energy needs out of fear of alleged radiation hazards. Yet, it is becoming increasingly apparent that electricity from nuclear power plantsts, as well as fossil- fueled power plants, is the most practical answer to many environmental problems.

The director of the Edison Electric Institute, Mr. W. Donham Crawford, had declared that "transportation, air pollution, waste disposal. . . low-cost housing are all areas in which increased use of electric energy can make a substantial contribution . . . . However, there is a danger that the honest concern of people over the potential impact of electric utility facilities on the environment may develop into a serious factor in delaying power plant construction and in meeting the nation's power needs." Technology can solve the problems of our environment if we will but let it lead us – at a walk -- to the wisest solutions.

Shout Down that 'Quake

When in doubt, scream and shout.

To be specific, a Los Angeles psychologist recommends that the next time you're caught in an earthquake, don't be frightened, be angry. Shout, curse, clench your jaws, shake your fist, stomp your feet and order the earth to stop shaking.

Amazingly enough, it will stop and you will experience an exhilarating feeling of mastery over primeval forces like that of an Indian rain dancer. But more important, says Dr. Donald F. Cowan, you will have mastered the feeling of helplessness, hopelessness and fear that filled people during the Feb. 9 earthquake in California, an experience which still gives many of them the jitters.

He calls it the "angry assertion method."

Shout, curse, shake your fist – we do it every time we read the headlines about the latest world or domestic crisis and it doesn't seem to help.

But maybe earthquakes are different.

O.K., So 'Woman' It Is

A woman is only a woman but. . what if she's "Man of the Year..?

The Association for Children with Retarded Mental Development was faced with this problem when for the first time in its 20-year history, a woman instead of a man was selected for its highest annual recognition for outstanding work for the association. Should she be "Man of the Year," like the 19 previous recipients, or "Woman of the Year..?

To help solve the dilemma, the association conducted a poll among members of Congress, the nation's governors and press, radio and television people.

Five per cent said she should be named "Man of the Year." Another five per cent suggested titles like "Person of the Year" or "Human Being of the Year." But 90 per cent voted for "Woman of the Year."

The association thinks the results of the poll might well settle once and for all whether a woman in the House of Representatives is a "congressman" or a "congresswoman," a female member of a state legislature is an "assemblyman" or "assemblywoman" or a woman heading a committee is "chairman" or "chairlady."

Meanwhile, male chauvinists will reflect that a good cigar is still a smoke.

Is Consumerism New?

This statement was made more than a half-century ago by C. W. Post, president of the Postum Cereal Company, a forerunner of General Foods Corporation.

In 1906, Mr. Post demonstrated the social responsibility of business by placing advertisements in newspapers throughout the country urging passage of the first Pure Food & Drug Bill then being considered by congress. He asked the readers to write their congressmen and senators.

Sen. Moss to Watch Trend of Cigaret Ads

Sen. Moss will "Head Off" print cigaret ads if the tobacco industry tries "to flood the country" with increased use of outdoor and print media.

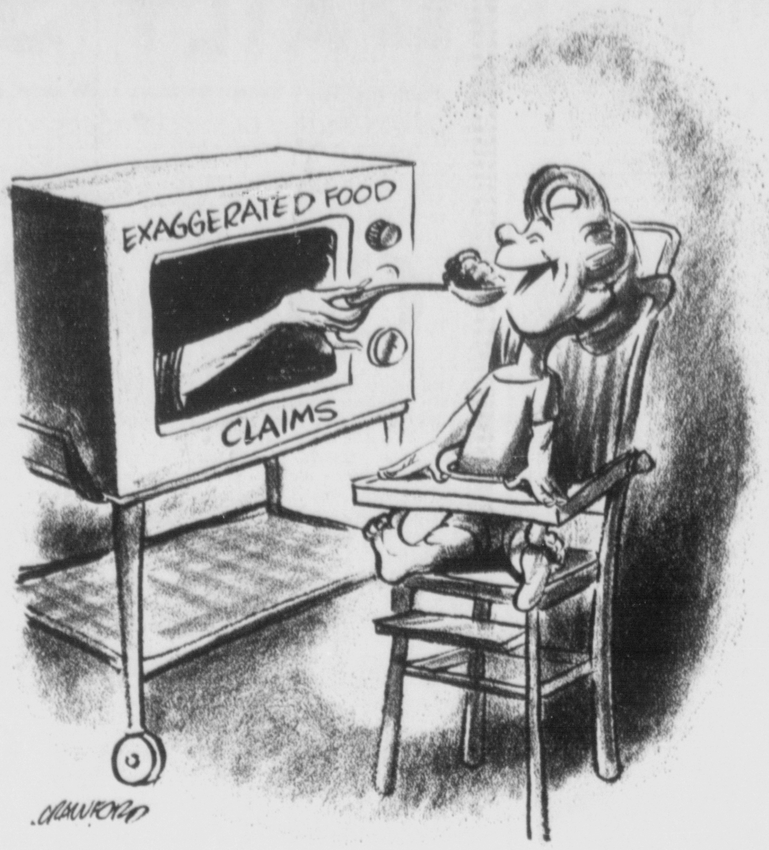

In a speech before the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association, Sen. Moss said he will ask the FTC to enforce its regulation requiring tobacco companies to print health warnings if the companies move in this direction.

After an informal survey of newspapers and magazines last year, the Senator said he was "disappointed by the number of newspapers that felt that there should be no inhibition on cigaret advertising, even though the product has been cited as being dangerous to health.

"Unfortunately, publishers who take this attitude may well succumb to the blandishments of the tobacco interests and absorb some of this free floating advertising money," he said.

The Electronic Mother

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

The five diseases Americans probably fear most are cancer, heart attacks, strokes, hydrophobia and tetanus, or lockjaw—although not necessarily in that order.

The industrial disease that bothers personnel executives the most, however, is "one-day pneumonia," the custom many employes have of taking an extra day off preceding or following a holiday.

We might easily make a better world if the time we spend disentangling wire coat hangers in closets were put to a more constructive use.

Among the victims of today's price inflation are cabdrivers and restaurant waiters. They complain that many of their customers, instead of tipping 15 to 20 per cent of the bill, are now doling out 10 to 12 per cent. What are resentful patrons going to do when the nation's hatcheck girls start charging four bits to watch their hats, coats and umbrellas?

Practically every U.S. high school pupil used to be able to name the capital and largest city in each of the American states. But today it is doubtful whether two out of five persons over the age of 25 can do so without making at least two to four mistakes.

An old-timer now is anyone who can remember when a first-class letter took only a two-cent stamp—and it was delivered to the recipient before he had aged visibly.

Men's sideburns are reaching such a length that it has become questionable whether they are really sideburns or bears. It would seem fair that when they get so long they get caulht in a fellow's necktie knot they should be classified as whiskers.

The term "middle class" also has become confusing. Caught between rising prices and increasing taxes, the middle class is beginning to feel squeezed out of existence. No guy today really ought to call himself a member of the middle class unless his takehome pay still amounts to at least $5 more a week than he would get if he went on public welfare.

Blondes are reported to have the most fun, but did you ever notice how rarely you meet a red-haired spinster?

Just A Myth, Kids

There's a big hassle going on in Merrick, Long Island, over sex education, as in many other places around the country.

In this community, however, 70 parents have signed a petition protesting the expurgation of two chapters dealing with "human sexuality" from a health textbook used by seventh-grade pupils. Not only were 40 pages cut out of the books but reference to the chapters was blacked out on the table of contents.

School authorities say the chapters were expurgated because sex education is not in the curriculum, of course, because many parents sincerely do not want it there.

In the meantime, children seeing the censored table of contents and the gaping hole in their books will not in the slightest be curious about what they are not being permitted to read and lose all interest in this thing called "human sexuality."

STATESMANSHIP IMPERATIVE

The decade of the 70's will witness a tempering of philosophies and approaches to many questions. A foretaste of the change to come is already observable in the investor - owned electric power industry. Utility managements are faced with considerations that never before existed. These include environmental preservation, the application of nuclear energy, the employment of minority groups, the development of recreation sites and questions of how to keep up, in terms of energy and capital financing, with the population explosion.

As the electric industry looks to the future with new perspective, so should those who have made a political game of baiting the industry and advocating destructive public policies concerned more with garnering votes than creating adequate energy supplies. the chairman of the Federal Power Commission listed what he believes to be the principal policy questions now facing the FPC: ". . .(1) How can utility systems make the most efficient use of the nation's resources in serving the needs of consumers while preserving environmental quality? (2) What operating and regulatory procedures will insure timely installation of needed facilities? (3) What procedures will best insure development of new sources of natural gas? (4) What. . . regulatory actions will best assure continued attraction of capital by utilities at reasonable costs while producing optimum service at a fair price?"

These are all matters that go far beyond the realm of politics, and the smart politician will recognize them for what they are -- the great problems of the 70's that demand the same statesmanship from political officeholders as they do from utility company managements.

Mute Threats on POWs

H. Ross Perot, the Texas multimillionaire, continues to insist that the pressure of public opinion will eventually force North Vietnam to release its American prisoners of war.

"We hold the key to the release of these men in our hands," he told an audience at Baylor University in Waco the other day.

From a cultural point of view, he explained, the North Vietnamese don't think we should want these men back. They consider their own prisoners to be disgraced men. But the good will of the American people is so important and the POWs so unimportant that the North Vietnamese are reluctant to anger the American public.

He notes that 85 per cent of the mail that has been received from the prisoners has come since pressure from the people began.

"You've got to couple persistence with patience to secure their release," says Perot.

In view of this, it may be unfortunate that President Nixon has begun warning Hanoi that some U.S. troops will remain in Vietnam as long as any americans are held prisoner. "Face" is also important to the North Vietnamese.

It will be many months yet before U. S. troop strength in Vietnam approaches a residual, token level. Until that point is reached, perhaps we ought to mute the threats and give public pressure that much more time to work.

EXCESSIVE WAGE ACCORDS WEAKEN U.S. COMPETITION

Excessive wage settlements will weaken the U. S. competitive position in foreign markets, and also cost workers some jobs, an industry leader told an American business organization meeting in Montreal.

Such wage rises, unmatched by increased productivity, may prolong American efforts to recover from a debilitating inflation, according to H. C. Lumb, Vice President, Corporate Relations and Public Affairs, Republic Steel Corp., Cleveland who spoke on "Business Looks at Labor changes in the '70s."

Mr. Lumb addressed the annual meeting of the Association of Industrial Advertisers. He called on American industry to support positive moves for labor law reform in the United States in order to counteract decisions by the National Labor Relations Board which encourage union abuse of power.

The speaker pointed out that the record 1969 median wage increase of 22 cents per hour has grown to 24.8 cents per hour in the first 22 weeks of 1970 (almost three times the comparable 1965 figures) and is being used by labor this year "as a plateau from which to demand even higher settlements."

If labor's inflationary wage demands are not controlled, he went on, it will not only result in the loss of American business and jobs abroad but may also provoke such disruptive possibilities as wage - price controls, a consumer revolt that further curtails purchases, and the imposition of some compulsory mechanisms to settle labor-management disputes, which both parties abhor.

TRAVEL--
GOOD INVESTMENT

Americans have probably become the travelingest people on earth, but even this may not be saying much. A lot of the travel that goes on is pretty hum-drum -- commuting to work for example. For every person who really travels -- takes trips to see and learn -- there are thousands who stay at home. And many of them stay at home because they feel it is an extravagance to spend money traveling, or they think the best way to rest during a vacation is to "do nothing."

These and other common shibboleths concerning travel are blown into the far beyond by a fascinating -- and frankly promotional -- feature story advertisement sponsored in The Reader's Digest by half a dozen major airlines and an aircraft manufacturer*. Promotional or not, The Digest has some good answers to the question of, "Should you travel more?" It cites one top clinical researcher who notes that just doing the same thing in the same place day after day after day can be a threat to health. It quotes the president of Life Extension Foundation who says, "Vacations are essential to health. But sitting around home is not enough. Health deteriorates when leisure time is marked by decreased physical activity, by social isolation or lack of mental stimulation."

The Digest story goes on to show how travel broadens opportunities in business and gives the opinions of personnel managers of a number of major companies -- men who feel that travel gives an extra dimension that adds to an individual's ability to make decisions and advance faster. Travel can be a good investment at times, in saving a shaky marriage. It can also change the outlook and improve the scholastic abilities of children.

The Digest does a good job of giving a positive answer, in a highly authoritative manner, to the stav - at - homes who never travel, mainly because they have been inculcated with the old wives tale that it is wasteful and extravagant or that there are better things to do at home. Travel is the antidote to routine, and routine can be deadly. Properly done, travel can contribute to good health and to learning. In short, travel is a good investment.

New-found
'Mad Money'

Everybody gets a raise this year, of sorts.

Thanks chiefly to an end to the income tax surcharge and an increase in personal exemptions, the average American will have to work only two hours and 37 minutes out of an eight-hour day to pay his state, local and federal taxes, reports the Tax Foundation.

Last year the figure was two hours and 43 minutes. That means an extra six minutes' worth of "mad money" every day.

Don't spend it all in one place.

BY THE TRUCKLOAD

It was announced recently that Mack Trucks, Inc., has signed a preliminary agreement to help build the world's largest truck plant in the Soviet Union. The agreement should not receive the required U.S. government approval.

It seems that experience with "aid to the enemy" has not been an adequate teacher in this instance. How could memories be so short that we forget the incredible loss of lives in World War II after our trade with the pre-war Japanese militarists, or even closer to home, the continuing battle in Vietnam, sponsored by the Soviet Union, that kills our soldiers.

Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird said in a recent magazine interview, "Before giving away the technology to construct trucks in the Soviet Union, and establishing plants for them, there should be some indication on the part of the Soviet Union that they're not going to continue sending the trucks to North Vietnam by shiploads for use on the Ho Chi Minh trail."

The president of Mack Trucks said he was "a little corned" that the talks between Mack and Soviet representatives would be "blown out of proportion..." We need to be more than "a little concerned" about such an announcement.

Patriots and concerned citizens can help slow the communist tide by writing letters-to-the-editors opposing the Mack Truck project.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON -- The key to a Vietnam settlement isn't the new communist peace plan so much as the appearance in Paris of North Vietnam's politburo member Le Duc Tho.

He left Paris 14 months ago with the terse announcement that he wouldn't return until he had an agreement in his pocket.

To bring him back, President Nixon has made a number of unpublicized overtures through communist and neutral intermediaries. These secret soundings have now brought Le Duc Tho to Paris.

His appearance definitely is the result of intricate backstage diplomacy. In making the secret arrangements, Hanoi had insisted he talk to someone with more authority than Ambassador David K. E. Bruce. It's no coincidence, therefore, that Le Duc Tho arrived at the same time Harry Kissinger, the President's national security adviser, also scheduled a trip to Paris.

North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris had complained that Bruce was unfriendly. Both of his predecessors, Averell Harriman and Henry Cabot Lodge, had maintained cordial personal relations with the North Vietnamese. But Bruce has been cold and formal.

This is one reason, the intermediaries hinted, that the North Vietnamese have refused to hold secret meetings in the Paris suburbs such as took place under Harriman and Lodge.

BELITTLING BRUCE

Washington has also treated Bruce more as a glorified spokesman than a negotiator. The Paris delegation has been restricted, for example, to the most routine intelligence about the war they are supposed to be settling. The top-secret stuff – battle plans, position papers, contingency plans and policymaking documents -- aren't sent to Paris.

The air strikes at missile sites and other tactical targets in North Vietnam last November caught Bruce completely by surprise. He received his first word of the attacks from the North Vietnamese.

Annoyed, he directed his military liaison man, Lt. Gen. Julian Ewell, to send an urgent message to the Pentagon requesting more details. Admiral Thomas Moorer, the Joint Chiefs chairman, sent back a Washington Post account of the raids. The reply was regarded in Paris as an insulting message to Bruce, suggesting he should be satisfied with what he reads in the newspapers.

Meanwhile, Le Duc Tho still has no agreement in his pocket,, but meaningful peace negotiations may now be possible.

Footnote: Washington is keeping an anxious eye on Saigon, which in the past has sought to snag the Paris negotiations. This is the reason, apparently, that Kissinger is traveling to Paris by way of Saigon. The U. S. has also taken the precaution, in the past, of intercepting the secret messages between South Vietnam's top people in Paris and Saigon. The South Vietnamese messages that have fallen into our hands have been identified by the code name "Gout." The National Security Agency, which handles secret codes and communications, stamps the intercepted messages "immediate precedence" and sends them by teletype to the White House marked "Esxlusive for Dr. Henry A. Kissinger/White House." At the bottom of each message, the date and time of the interception is given.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

HOOVER AND TAMM – For years, the International Association of Chiefs of Police passed fulsome resolutions in praise of "The Honorable J. Edgar Hoover." It didn't detract from Hoover's glory that the resolutions were quietly prepared by the FBI and approved in advance by its director. But lately, Hoover has been feuding with the IACP's executive director, Quinn Tamm, himself a former FBI official. Hoover's supporters claim that Tamm, botched up almost every top job at the FBI. Tamm's friends say he not only had a great career at the FBI but that Hoover himself recommended him for the IACP job. They say it was only after Tamm began to get personal publicity and to emerge as a rival to Hoover as a law enforcement spokesman that the FBI chief turned against him. It now looks as if Hoover, at last, may win the feud. the IACP'S board is talking about firing Tamm for making "indiscreet statements."

UNDER THE DOME – Senators Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., and George McGovern, D-S.D., two presidential hopefuls who are frequently critical of military spending, didn't bother to show up for the crucial vote on limiting the Pentagon budget to $68 billion . . . . Sen. James Eastland, D-Miss., who has a habit of rubbing perfume across his pudgy fingers and dabbing a little on his chin, also has a curious method for sorting mail. He spreads the letters on a table, picks out correspondence from all the notables, and then discards the leftovers. . . Rep. Jim Burke, D-Mass., uses three different form letters thanking his constituents for their "recent correspondence," "recent warm letter" or "recent friendly letter." . . . Sen. David Gambrell's supporters are nervous because one of the new Senator's aides turns out to have a criminal record. The aide, a black named Benny Smith, was convicted two years ago for violation of the state tax law. Gambrell is standing by Smith, who has made restitution to his state. NO FAVORITISM – Transportation Secretary John Volpe likes to tell this story on himself. Once when he was in a desperate hurry, he found his official plane 18th in line for take-off at New York City's La Guardia Airport. An associate suggested to Volpe, since he's in charge of the Federal Aviation Administration, that he ask his pilot to radio the tower requesting immediate clearance to take off. Volpe gave the order to the pilot who reported back a few moments later: "Mr. Secretary, the men in the tower send you their regards and instructed me to tell you we are still 18th in line for take-off."

Ann Landers

Kids Aren't the Only Ones Who Tell Secrets

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 23, a college graduate and what you would call a quiet, introverted person. He showed very little interest in girls until last year when he started to see a divorced woman with two children.

To my complete surprise they were married in March. This woman is 35 years old, which makes her exactly six years younger than I am. I was not happy about the marriage but I am keeping my mouth shut. Whenever we have a meal together, I get indigestion.

The problem is that my son's wife has started to call me "Mother" which burns me up. My husband thinks it is hilarious. I am nowhere near old enough to be her mother and she knows it. I'm sure she uses this "mother" bit to make me seem older -- and to make herself seem younger. What do you suggest I do about it? -- Not laughing

Dear Not: The next time your son's wife calls you "Mother," get right to the point. Say, "I'd prefer you called me Geraldine. And bet your mother would appreciate it, too."

Dear Ann Landers: I am 13 years old and my problem is myself. I have a big mouth. I tell things I have no right to tell -- such as other people's secrets. It doesn't make any difference that I promise on my word of honor to keep mum. It doesn't even help when I cross my heart and hope to die. I really mean to keep my word, but when I am with someone I want to impress and we get on the subject of secrets, I find myself spilling everything. Afterwards, I get so mad at myself I could bite my tongue off.

How can I overcome this terrible fault? It is very babyish and I know it. I have promised myself at least a dozen times never to do it again. But somehow I just can't keep my big mouth shut. Can you help me? -- Blabbing Without End

Dear Blab: Telling secrets is not a childhood disease. Many grownups are afflicted with the same problem. Kids call it babbling. Adults call it "betraying a confidence," but it's the same thing.

Before you can find a cure, you must recognize the cause. Are you aware of why you do this? It's because it makes you feel important to know something that someone else doesn't know. In other words, you do it to build yourself up. The next time you are tempted to betray a friend, tell yourself, "It is more important to be honorable and trustworthy than to look important for one small minute. I will keep my mouth shut." Then do it.

Dear Ann Landers: A girl wrote and asked what her life would be like if she married a compulsive talker. May I be Ann Landers and tell her? I know because I did it.

Dear Girl: You will not have a moment's peace, my dear. He will talk to you while you are reading, watching TV and sleeping. He will talk to you while you are on the phone trying to talk to someone else. He will talk over you and around you.

You will have a nervous breakdown and land in the hospital. When he comes to see you he will say, "Why did you do this to me? I need you at home." Ann Landers says people who talk all the time are sick. She is right. If you marry such a man you will be sick, too. Back away from this nut and marry someone who is normal. -- Sorry I Didn't Know Enough

Dear Sorry: Your letter is most convincing. I hope she listens.

Unsure of yourself on dates? What's right? What's wrong? Should you? Shouldn't you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet "Dating Do's and Don'ts," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mr. and Mrs. "Buster" Caplinger of Jefferson City, Mo., are parents of a son born Monday evening. Mr. Caplinger is the traveling auditor for the State Highway Commission, and the recent arrival places R. C. "Cap" Caplinger in the grandfather class for the very first time.

It's 30 degrees cooler in the Malone Theatre. We have recently installed a complete ventilating and cooling system that maintains an even temperature at all times. Playing today, "Confessions of a Co-Ed" with Phillips Holmes, Sylvia Sidney and Norman Foster.

Recording is Evidence

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

If Charley sold sandwiches, he could have been a drug store. A norcotics peddler, he was loaded with drugs of all kinds at all times. One time, however, was the wrong time.

In speaking to a prospective customer, he didn't realize that the customer was a police informant who had been wired for sound. Thus, when he told the prospective customer in effect that he could choose from column "A" or column "B," he was promptly arrested as a dope pusher.

And, in court, the recording was used as evidence against him.

"You can't use that electronic stool pigeon against me," protested Charley. "It violates my constitutional rights. The recording was made without my knowledge and consent and without a court order. I've got my rights and that's wrong."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit the recording to be used as evidence against Charley?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that when a police agent talks to a suspect, he can report the conversation for use in a criminal trial. There is no constitutional difference noted the judge, when the agent, or in this case an informer, either simultaneously records the conversation or simultaneously transmits it to other agents who listen and record it. Under such circumstances, concluded the judge in effect, electronic eavesdropping is permissable without a warrant.

Science In Your Life

By BOB JONES

WESLEY Wharton of Springfield writes for information about the safety of nuclear power generators, "Why has the Atomic Energy Commission stopped approving new nuclear reactors?" he asks.

Atomic energy commission scientists say that power reactors are safe. Power reactors work by generating extremely high temperatures through atomic fission (atom splitting).

Only by carrying this heat away from the reactor core, can we prevent extremely dangerous situations. Consequently, the question has been raised, what happens when a reactor runs out of cooling water?

This has never happened and engineers say that with current reactor design it is not likely to happen. However, concern about this subject has increased rapidly since an AEC experiment showed that present design for emergency core cooling will not work. In a mock-up reactor, when an emergency was simulated, high steam pressure prevented almost all of the emergency cooling water from entering the reactor.

It remains to be seen whether this is indeed a hazard or whether the test itself was faulty. New tests are being planned.

Because there are thousands and thousands of corn fields in hundreds and hundreds of counties across this country and in other countries the average of all corn fields does not change very much. This allows our UMC agricultural economists Malcolm J. Blaclee and Kenneth C. Scheeberger to simulate the growth response of dry land and irrigated corn on paper.

This ability to simulate field conditions has provided these ag economists with impressive research tools. They will not be limited to seasonal or even annual variations or required to comply with normal growth cycles. There will be no cost involved in the planting, maintaining, and harvesting this imaginary research crop.

Where the effects of various practices on the corn crop are already known (from field research), the conclusions to be drawn from modifications of these practices can be quickly worked out by these ag economists. It will all be done at a big saving to tax payers and with important gains to corn producers.

You are aware of the shortage of medical doctors in the United States. It has been estimated that 50,000 more physicians are needed than are available.

At the same time there is a burdensome surplus of physicists, biologists, and men in some engineering specialities. The problem with what to do with this highly trained manpower has caused much worry.

Now Dr. William J. Harrington, chairman of the department of medicine at University of Miami School of Medicine has an answer. He proposes a program to convert these scientists to medical doctors. A course of study has been worked out at Miami whereby qualified Ph.D.s can become MDs within a period of 18 to 24 months. Says Dr. Harrington, "It is our belief that adequate safe guards have been included to preserve high quality in education while responding to the need not only for more physicians, but also for improved utilization of some of our best-trained manpower."

All of your sympathy for animals which are forced to stay outdoors in the extremes of hot weather and cold weather may have been wasted. They are probably better off outside than in many barns.

We mentioned last year the hazards of ammonia gas in confinement livestock barns. This research by staff members of the UMC dairy department showed that ammonia levels can reach concentrations that are dangerous to the animals that must breathe them continuously in confinement.

In additional work by Harold D. Johnson and Fred Hays of our dairy department, two other chemicals have been indicted. Both of these show up in confinement livestock barns and may also be found in polluted air about us. Sulpher dioxide generates a known hazard in heavy concentration. But what about low levels of concentration?

The UMC researchers worked with laboratory mice to answer this question. They found "continuous exposure to low levels of sulpher dioxide depress feed and water intake, body weight and oxygen consumption and caused upper respiratory damages."

In another study they found that hydrogen sulfide, a product of manure gas, even at low levels produced problems for animals exposed for as little as 48 hours.

You soon may be wearing a garment that was cut out with a laser. Scientats at Hughes Aircraft Company describe their new device as "the first major advance in apparel manufacture since the sewing machine."

Already in use, the unit includes a computer which stores cutting instructions. The laser beam cuts garments one at a time from a single layer of cioth. It is reported to possess amazing speed and much greater accuracy than the old method which cuts garments from many layers at a time.

PET DOCTOR

By T.M. Eagle, D.V.M.

CAT DIARRHEA

Question: Our cat has diarrhea and the pills that usually stop this don't seem to work any more. What do you suggest? (Don Kirk, Reading, Pa.)

Dear Don, Diarrhea or uncontrollable bowel action is not a disease. It is an indication of irritation and inflammation of the intestinal tract. Nature is robbing the body of fluids attempting to flush out the irritant. This irritant could be internal parasites, foreign bodies, bacteria and viruses, or foods the animal just can not digest properly. Diarrhea will occur during the course of many disease conditions. The big job is to arrive at an early diagnosis to stop this drain of body fluids. Take a sample of the stool along with your kitty for her appointment with the veterinarian. Many times a simple adjustment in the diet will do the trick. I only hope your kitty has received vaccination against infectious feline enteritis, a very lethal disease among cats. Waste no more time with the ordinary antidiarrheal pills and solutions. (You may send your questions to Dr. Eagle, P.O. Box 1042, Columbia, Mo. 65201)

The World Almanac recalls that Richard Henry Lee proposed a declaration of American independence, June 7, 1776, when he introduced in the Continental Congress a resolution declaring "that these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved."

MISSOURI has a new flathead catfish record of 94 pounds, 20 pounds over the old record. Ed Chronister, 65, of rural Poplar Bluff, caught the monster on a trotline June 21 in the St. Francis River about a mile below Wappapello Dam. He used a goldfish minnow and a 4/0 hook and took 30 minutes to land the fish by himself. One oddity is that the fish had only one eye and Mr. Chronister himself has but one eye.

Hearnes Places

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. (AP) – Gov. Warren E. Hearnes shot a 36-hold score of 156 last weekend to finish a respectable 14th in the 25th annual Ozark Pro-Am golf tournament.

Hearnes played with three other men from his home town of Charleston, Mo.

He shot rounds of 75 and 81 during play Saturday and Sunday.

New Challenge for Devine

EDITOR's Note: National Football League teams begin checking into training camp this week and with them are two men on the spot—Dan Devine of the Green Bay Packers and Tommy Prothro of the Los Angeles Rams. Highly successful veterans among college coaches but rookies in the pros, Prothro and Devine sat down with Associated Press Sports Writer Mike Rathet and Will Grimsley for a round-table discussion that covered their problems, the problems of their players and the problems of the sport.

By MIKE RATHET
and WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — Can two former college coaches improve the level of play in professional football?

Tommy Prothro, who left UCLA for the coaching job with the Los Angeles Rams, and Dan Devine, who stepped into Lombardi country by leaving the University of Missouri for the Green Bay Packers, say they not only can but should— after seeing some pro performances "that a junior high school coach wouldn't put up with."

In this first of a three-part series, both discuss their reasons for accepting their new challenge.

The questions and answers:

Rathet: It would probably be most appropriate if we started by having both of you explain your decision to leave the college coaching ranks for pro jobs, which most people consider less secure.

Prothro: The reason I went into pro coaching is that over the years I've come to decide, contrary to what I thought six or eight years ago, that pro football is bigger than college football.

Rathet: Dan, did you have the same appreciation—that pro football was bigger than college football?

Devine: Basically that would be it. This came down to a decision where I just couldn't say no to it. I didn't say yes right away but it was something I hadn't done, something I wanted to do.

Grimley: Dan, did you have any tropidations, any feeling that in moving from college to pro ball you were getting into water over your head?

Devine: No. If I had that feeling I wouldn't have made the move.

Prothro: On the other hand ... if you move across the street you face a new situation and you always realize that it may turn out a little different from what you've done before.

Grimsley: Bear Bryant Alabama coach said the reason he never went into pro football was because he gets a kick out of developing players and a pro coach gets players already developed. Do you believe a playor is behond development once he becomes a pro?

Prothro: I think a lot of pro people feel this way. But I intend to try and develop players on our team.

Rathet: When you're talking about developing do you mean ...

Prothro: I mean I talked to our football squad and I told them "it may sound strange to you for me to tell you—some of whom are the best or among the best in the world at what you do—but I intend to try and improve the way you are doing it."

Devine: As far as developing players is concerned, you look at film when you are playing an opponent in college and you see some guys pretty weak in fundamentals. Suddenly those people appear on the pro scene, and they're still just as weak in fundamentals. You'd be astounded if I sat down and showed you the film of Green Bay-Chicago. If you took the uniforms off them, you'd see some plays that a junior high school coach wouldn't put up with. Some of the fundamentals are atrocious and if I didn't feel that I could at least correct some of those things I'd be one lousy football coach.

Grimsley: Dan, the old college guys says that pro football is dull, that it's too stylized, whereas college football gives you unpredictability. Is there that great a difference between the kind of football played in college and that played in the pros?

Devine: I'd be less than honest if I didn't say I'm going to miss that goal line stand where the whole student body and the cheer leaders—you know, when everybody is up there yelling. You probably can't copy that. By the same token, in the last five years, I've seen a real trend in the colleges to play the so-called pro game as opposed to what some people call the so-called college game. Five years ago no one we played used the so-called pro defense. Last year we played 11 teams, and nine used the pro defense. So there is more similarity between the games that people think.

Grimsley: How do you feel about that Tom?

Prothro: I think any time you have 26 teams in one category and 1,000 in another the 26 of them are going to be more stereotyped. If there were eight they would be more stereotyped than the 26. There are more college teams so there's going to be more divergence of offenses and defenses. I think the pros have borrowed many of the best things from college football and college football has borrowed many of the best things from pro football.

Star Squads Set

NEW YORK (AP) — Atlanta's Hank Aaron and San Francisco's Willie Mays, two of baseball's all-time greats, and Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell, the major league leader in home runs and runs batted in, were named today as the starting outfield for the 1971 National League All-Star team.

Aaron, starting for the 12th time and appearing in his 20th All-Star game, was the top vote getter in both major leagues with 1,119,306 votes out of 2,396,895 ballots cast.

Mays, also named as a starter for the 12th time and playing in his 22nd All-Star game, was second in the NL with 1,084,887 votes.

Stargell collected 851,161 votes, far ahead of fourth-place finisher Lou Brock of St. Louis, who had 432,575.

San Francisco will be the only team with two starters for the National Leaguers when they oppose the American League in the classic at Detroit in a night game July 13. In addition to Mays, the Giants' Willie McCovey will be at first base.

Completing the starting NL infield will be second baseman Glenn Beckert of Chicago, shortstop Bud Harrelson of New York and third baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis. The catcher will be Johnny Bench of Cincinnati.

Bench was the only other National Leaguer to granger more than a million votes. He received 1,060,651 in the balloting announced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Bench, Aaron, Mays and Beckert are repeaters from the 1970 starting squad.

Third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore led the AL voting with 1,110,468. Picked to join Robinson in the infield were shortstop Luis Aparicio of Boston, second baseman Rod Carew of Minnesota and first baseman Boog Powell of Baltimore. Ray Fosse of Cleveland was selected as the catcher.

Chosen to start in the outfield were Carl Yastrzemski of Boston, Tony Oliva of Minnesota and Frank Robinson of Baltimore.

Each of the starters selected by fans throughout the United States and Canada must play three innings.

The remainder of the teams, including pitchers, will be named by the managers—Cincinnati Sparky Anderson for the National Leaguers and Baltimore's Earl Weaver for the Americans.

Littell Unbeaten

The 6-foot-3 righthanded fireballer hasn't allowed a run in 14 2/3 innings.

in his most recent outing he picked up five strikeouts while walking three and allowing six hits. He allowed only one hit during his final four innings of work. He was the first pitcher on the Billings, team to go the distance.

Grid Outlook Bright

CAPE GIRARDEAU – Southeast Missouri State College's football fortunes have been so good in recent years that it has almost become commonplace for optimism to prevail in the Indian camp.

That was the case last year, and it is generally the case this year, despite the fact that the 1970 squad did not quite meet the coaching staff's expectations.

"We had unexpected difficulties last year which arose from injuries and then inexperience at vital positions such as quarterback and running back," said Head Coach Tom Thrower as he looked back upon a 5-5 overall campaign and a 4-2 MIAA record. The conference mark placed the Indians behind Central Missouri State College of Warrensburg and Northeast Missouri State College of Kirksville. They tied for the title.

It was the first time in three years that Southeast Missouri had not won or shared the loop crown.

Thrower continued, "As a result of injuries there is more experience at practically all positions. We look for our defensive unit to be one of the best in the school's history. Offensively, the passing game should improve because all the receivers and the quarterback have at least a year's experience together.

"The running game could improve, depending on some newcomers, but we averaged over four yards per carry last season and that will be difficult to surpass."

Thrower expects 48 returning players, including 32 lettermen, and 50 newcomers to report to camp on Aug. 22. One indication of the depth which the Indian coaches believe their squad has is that only five of the newcomers will be junior college transfers. And one of the five, Gary Hahn of Des Moines, Iowa is strictly a kicking specialist.

Southeast Missouri lost five hardnosed warriors via graduation – three were first team all-MIAA picks. Several other Indian gridders who saw considerable action last season have dropped by the wayside for various reasons also.

But for each vacancy in the starting units there seems to be at least one heir apparent. And at a number of positions it seems likely the competition for starting roles will be intense.

Thrower lists his top five returnees as senior fullback Eddie Moss of Poplar Bluff, senior flanker back Art Miller of Kirkwood, senior linebacker, Doug Mackey of Scotchplains, N. J., senior guard Jack Huelskamp of Normandy, and senior defensive back Richard Sanders of St. Louis.

Moss, who led the team in yards gained rushing and in scoring last season, is the only returning Indian on the 1970 first team All-MIAA mythical squad. Sanders and Mackey made the second team.

Miller and Huelskamp won honorable mention in the balloting as did junior end Steve Derringer of Webster Groves, senior linebacker Gene Figge of Ste. Genevieve, and senior defensive back John Bean of St. Louis. All of these players bear watching.

Attig was pressed into service as a green freshman last season when the MIAA's leading rusher of 1969, Al Holmes of St. Louis, was injured. All the southern Illinois resident did was wind up leading the conference in yards averaged per carry with 6.2.

Brune also got the call to quarterback the club as a freshman and performed admirably, leading the team in total offense with 1273 yards passing and 83 rushing.

Godwin succeeded with his toe, leading the league in punting with a 40.4 average, 12th best in the NCAA College Division.

Also returning to the Indian gridiron this fall is 245-pound defensive tackle Tim Luckett of Bruceville, Ind., a player the pros are interested in. Luckett was injured during the 1969 campaign and underwent a knee operation. Another knee operation was necessary last season and he sat out the year.

The knee seems all right now, according to Thrower, who is beginning his fourth year as the head man at Southeast Missouri. His record is 19-11. His career record, including high school teams, is 55-19-1.

Besides Hahn, other junior college transfers who will report to Southeast Missouri next month are Larry Luster of East St. Louis, Ill., Gary Rohr of East St. Louis, and Dan Peiffer of Harper, Iowa, all tackles; and John McClure of Maplewood, an end.

Fabick batters rocketed four doubles, four triples, and one home run on their way to a 31-0 triumph over Ryan Construction. Twenty-one hits stung the Ryan pitching in the four inning baseball rampage that saw the Fabic runners collect 13 and 17 run innings.

In the nightcap, Sealtest collected a forfeited victory from Ziegenhorn Insurance. Ziegenhorn failed to put nine players on the field.

Five errors, a triple and a home run from McCauley, and five additional hits in the first inning boosted Fabick into an early 13-0 lead. McCauley went four for five at the plate for the Fabick lineup, and collected six runs batted in.

Fabirk's 17 run third inning gave the Fabick squad a 31-8 margin. Four runs in the second and third innings sent the eight Ryan runners home to score.

Sherman and Miller each added three hits to the 21-hit Fabick attack. Mark and Mike Dewitt, Byrd, Stearnes, and Eckles each belted two hits.

Mark DeWitt Stearnes, and Eckles shared the pitching pleasures for the Fabick squad with DeWitt receiving credit for the win.

Couch was tagged with the loss. Ryan's Springs and Coach connected the team's only hits, both doubles.

Thirteen runs in the opening frame gave Collins an early advantage. Todd found itself trailing, 13-2, early in the battle and managed to put together two more runs.

National League

Jaycees handed the Security National Bank a 6-3 loss in the nightcap, highlighted by Lane's home run in the fourth.

Lions bid for a shot at first place took a turn for the worse. They are scrambling to catch Lewis Furniture in the National League race.

After trailing 1-0 in the fourth and 2-0 in the fifth, Legion came up with four tallies in the fifth. Fugate singled to open the inning, with one out, Dock walked, and Cox drove the first run home with as an error was tagged on the third baseman.

Barnett delivered his first home run blast of the year with two men on to send in the final three Legion runs.

Scherer held the Lions to only one hit, a single in the fourth inning off the bat of Medelberg. Scherer fanned 11 batters and walked five in the six inning victory.

Griffin suffered the loss on the mound, giving up five hits, two of which came off the bat of Scherer.

In the nightcap the Jaycees connected six hits, including doubles from Heeb and Lane, and a home run blast from Lane to defeat Security National.

Lanes' two hits accounted for three of the Jaycees' runs batted in with two in the first inning and an additional mark in the third inning, the Jaycees jumped into an early 3-1 lead. Jaycees' final scores came in the third and fourth innings.

McAfee went the distance for the Jaycees to pick up the six inning victory. Young was tagged with the loss.

Manker connected for two of the Banker's four hits.

The new bus station, involving the greater portion of a new building complex built by Don Kellett, is 32 feet by 45 feet, consisting of a modern waiting room and ticket office, and a room for freight and packages.

A total of 650 of the new buses will be in operation in 1971. They are a 47-passenger dual level super cruiser, 40 feet in length, and built at a cost of $64,000 each.

The first Greyhound bus was ushered in one of the company's 650 Super 7 47-passenger buses, brought in from Paducah for the first run.

Political Ads Are Getting Nastier

ART BUCHWALD

In the Commercial Appeal

WASHINGTON – I don't know if people have noticed it but TV political commercials are getting nastier and nastier. There was a time when a candidate appeared on the screen and made a one-minute pitch for your vote. But all this has gone by the boards, and now, thanks to the great creative brains of our advertising media, the new approach is to tell the audience what a miserable SOB the candidate's opponent is.

I sat in on a session where the top advertising men were brain-storming a TV commercial campaign for their candidate, Philbus Wurm, who was running for the United States Senate against the incumbent, Senator Allegro Symphony.

This is how it went.

"AS I SEE IT," said the copywriter, "we have to sell the people on Symphony's softness on pornography. Now what I suggest we do is have a woman sleeping in bed, and a guy comes in and rapes her, and the voice-over says, "These are the people Senator Symphony wants to let into your bedroom'."

"Not enough shock value," the art director said. "How about this? A group of dirty, hairy students sneaks up to a building and plants a bomb. The bomb goes off and the voice-over says, 'Symphony voted for the last education bill'."

"That's not bad," said a vice president. "How about Vietnam?"

"We've been working on that," the copywriter said. "We have some stock footage of a GI platoon attacking Hill 2,331. Then we hear Symphony's voice saying, 'Vietnam was a big mistake,' and the voice-over says, "T-II it to Company D'."

The campaign manager was ecstatic. "Beautiful. You have anything on the economy?"

The art director says, "We have some footage of an unemployment office, and we go in close on a guy who is holding his check, and we say, 'Why are you out of a job?' and he says, 'Because Senator Symphony closed the naval base. Then we show a crew putting the guy's furniture out in the street.

"That's great," a vice president said.

THE ART director said, "I think you'll like this one. It portrays Washington going up in a mushroom cloud and then a bunch of Soviet officers laughing. The voice- over says, 'Senator Symphony voted against the ABM'."

"It's dirty, but it will sell," the campaign manager laughed.

"But what about our candidate, Philbus Wurm?" someone asked. "Don't you think we ought to make one commercial with him in it?"

"Hell, no. If anyone sees that idiot on TV, we'll lose all our votes."

HEARNES SIGNS LAST OF APPROPRIATIONS BILLS

JEFFERSON CITY – Gov. Warren E. hearnes gave the Missouri legislature a taste of its own medicine as he signed the last of the appropriations bills in the $1.7 billion 1971-72 budget last week.

The governor struck $57,015 from the appropriation for the Legislative Fiscal Affairs Committee and $36,484 from the money appropriated for the Legislative Research Committee.

And, in a one-two punch, Hearnes let stand a requirement that the Fiscal Affair committee must give prior approval to any expenditures by the General Assembly, but exercized his line veto power to delete this requirement from all other state agencies.

His action was seen as a retaliation aginst the legislature for some $31 million in cuts its had made in his budget recommendations.

In his veto message, Hearnes said the economy theme used by the legislators in acting on his budget recommendations for various state agencies should be applied to the legislature as well.

"Throughout the 76th General Assembly, the theme of economy was stressed and additional programs were limited to present levels of service and expenditures," "Hearnes said. "It is my belief that in order for this philosophy of government as expressed by the General Assembly to be consistent and fair to all concerned, the same formula must be applied (to these committees)."

The bill left the Legislative Research committee, the department which drafts proposed laws, with $271,516, and Fiscal Affairs, a fact-finding agency on money matters, with $77,985. Both were in line with the governor's original recommendations.

Most of the money cut from the two staff committees' budgets was for additional employes.

In other action on the budget, Hearnes signed a bill retaining the pay raises for state employes effect July 1. Those earning less than $5,400 annually will receive a 15 per cent increase; those earning from $6,888 to $8,400 will receive a 5 per cent increase All other salaries not set by law will be raised a flat $300 annually.

Hearnes also vetoed language in an appropriation bill designating the funds for the state to insure itself for injury claims by state employes.

State law requires employes of certain agencies to be covered by a state self- insured program, but some 15,000 workers are covered by a common carrier policy which does not expire until Jan. 1, 1973.

State Comptroller John C. Vaughn said that because it would mean the loss of $160,000 in accrued credits, it would not be wise financially to cancel the policy with Insurance Consultants, Inc.

The Clayton insurance firm is headed by Stephen Kling, an honorary colonel on the governor's staff and Sidney Saloman, Jr., former Democratic National committeeman, is one of its brokers.

Also signed by the governor was the Medicare Health Services Act which expands coverage under Medicare. This was required by the government in order for the state to retain its almost $180 million a year federal welfare aid payments.

VIEW ON LUTHERANISM

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) – The chairman who defended the quest for social justice from its previous subordinate position to a central area of Christian ghetto, says the president of the Lutheran World Federation.

The Rev. Dr. Mikko I. Juva of Finland told churchmen here that Lutheranism used to concentrate entirely on individual sins, but now sees the struggle for social justice as an urgent task of the churches.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Child Should Know About the Family

Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have been married twice and have two children. I lost my first husband and my daughter is from that marriage. I now have a little boy from my second marriage. My little girl is 4½ years old and my first husband's parents often come to see her. She is too little to understand what really happened to her daddy but her grandparents seem to want to tell her things about him and she is a very mixed-up little girl. I have asked them not to say anything to her but it seems that they don't care to keep quiet. What can I do?

Dear Reader — The simplest thing in most complex situations is just to tell the truth. I think you have to be honest with children and this begins from the time they are old enough for you to have any verbal communication with them at all. Eventually, they will find out the truth and usually this is not as great a shock as finding out that they have been deceived by their loved ones.

I don't mean that it is necessary to go into traumatic details, but I think all questions should be answered as simply and directly as possible. Your problem reminds me of what sometimes happens to adopted children. They do very well when they are told from birth that they are adopted, but if they are not and learn the truth later in life, they often have a very severe emotional shock. I presume that your little girl does know that her real father is dead and, certainly, it is better that she understands this early in life.

Children are often much stronger than their parents realize. I believe that if you follow the course of just being truthful and honest there really shouldn't be any problem about what the child's grandparents tell her.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am a 40-year-old woman with a weight problem. Can I reduce safely by consuming liquids only—such as juices and broth? I take one high-potency vitamin tablet daily and one organic iron tablet with vitamin B-12 three times a day. It is much easier for me to lose weight this way than it is by eating foods. I always end up with too many calories.

Dear Reader—You probably can lose weight that way, depending on what is in your juice and broth. I don't recommend it particularly, unless you are under a physician's care. Any weight you lose will probably come right back after you resume your usual eating habits. Clearly, you can't live on juice and broth forever. The key to weight control, as opposed to lose a little—gain a little, is a basic change in living habits. This includes what you eat and how much physical activity you do. Why don't you just cut out the fat, the sugar and the bread and walk a mile each day. Then see where you are in about three months.

To make a passenger automobile tire takes more than 50 ingredients, including fabric, rubber, steel, carbon black, oil and chemicals.

Who Cares About The Public

By David Lawrence

IT APPEARS INCREDIBLE that one of the most important operations in our national economy – the relations between management and labor – seems to have been put outside of the scope of Government, leaving private groups free to exercise vast power. Limitless damage can be done innocent citizens who are not parties to any dispute but who must suffer the consequences of interrupted transportation or a shutdown of industries essential to their welfare.

Should any group be permitted to cause delays in delivery of the mails?

Should labor unions be free to make demands that are unfair and economically unsound?

Should management resist the granting of wage raises that are fully justified and which can be paid without impairing the financial status of the employer?

Who is going to decide such issues? Today it requires a battle between management and labor based upon the threats of a long struggle or a strike. Collective bargaining is often a hassle in which each side attempts to bluff the other. In the end the public suffers.

When there is so much at stake, why doesn't the Government set up its own apparatus –judicially minded tribunals which can examine the economic status of companies and the reasonableness of the demands made by labor, and then render a decision binding upon both parties?

This, of course, would introduce an element of governmental compulsion which has long been opposed. Yet the disaster of economic collapse can be far worse, and indeed may be coming as year after year labor and management fight each other without any real progress toward a more satisfactory means of settling their disputes.

Congress has passed laws which require a "cooling off" period in certain labor disputes, but the effect has been simply to postpone the day of reckoning. The labor unions merely defer action and do nothing until the moratorium is ended. Plainly, what is needed is a governnmental agency that both the labor unions and management will recognize as fully authorized to make decisions through specially created boards of arbitration, whose rulings will be final.

It has been argued that labor does not have to accept such settlements and that many workers would not resign their jobs. But the federal statutes could well provide that anyone who defied the law would not retain any employment rights in a particular company or industry involved in the dispute. Sooner or later, both sides would discover that obedience was the better course.

Arthur F. Burns, Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, in a recent speech drew attention to the inflationary results of excessive wage increases in the past few years. He said:

"Nor is the end of this explosive round of wage increases yet in sight. Next year, contracts expire in such major industries as steel, aluminum, copper and cans. If contracts in those industries are patterned on recent agreements in the construction industry – or, for that matter, in the trucking and automobile industries – heavy upward pressures on prices will continue."

Mr. Burns declared that further steps may prove necessary to slow the rise in wages which is pushing up costs and prices. Numerous measures, he said, might be taken "to improve the functioning of our markets," including "compulsory arbitration of labor disputes in industries that vitally involve the public interest."

The question arises as to how far governmental intervention might extend. Authority could be given to an arbitration agency to set up boards of its own to take action whenever a strike of "major" proportions is threatened. This might be defined as one that would interfere seriously with the working of the economy and would be likely to inflict heavy losses on a large number of innocent persons.

Congress has a duty and responsibility to protect the nation against such disasters as an interruption in the mail service or a collapse of rail transportation – in fact, against a nationwide strike in any essential industry. These occurrences affect employers and employes, and also impair the progress of the economy itself. The ill effects are felt by millions of citizens.

Poignant Story Of a Couple's Mountain Retreat

BLACK SUN. By Edward Abbey. Simon & Schuster. $5.95.

Will Gatlin had become a loner, a dropout from life.

Six years ago, when he was 31, he had fled from a teaching job in the East, and from a marriage that ended in divorce. He had gone to the mountains of the Southwest, where for six months a year he was a forest ranger, manning a fire-watch tower in a lonely spot.

Then there arrived on the scene a little 19-year-old sprite named Sandy MacKenzie, who also was fleeing from something — an uncertain engagement with a young Air Force cadet.

Could there be a spark between a disenchanted older man and a girl who is not yet mature? There could, and the author of this novel makes the situation credible.

So this is a story about their affair — how he initiates her into sex, how they explore the wilderness, how they discover the nuances of a relationship that may not last. It also is a tragic story, and a poignant one.

Abbey, something of a loner himself, has written one other book, an account based on his experiences in the Arches National Monument. This is his first novel, and he is very good at it. He weaves the narrative back and forth through time, but not in a way to confuse the reader.

How can men be so vague? I swear, all it takes to make a man happy is a fairly clean house to come home to; a good meal on the table three times a day to come home to; a comfortable divan after a hard game of golf to come home to; and clean sheets & a smiling wife in the evening. No wonder so many women commit suicide, its the constant day to day grind of living with such bovine individuals that finally makes a gal just flip her lid!

For example, the other day (one of many such days I might add) Charles came home late in the afternoon after having only spent six hours on the course with the other little boys he plays with, plops his fat torso down (since the advent of the golf cart I've yet to behold a slim golfer) in his new easy chair for sleeping after golf games & did just that! I looked at him snoring for as long as I could stand it & then I quietly went beserk & when my beserk stopped being so quiet & got loud enough to (such bad manners on my part), awaken him, here was the resulting conversation and I quote—

"What the hell's the matter with you?" "Nothing!" "Well somethings the matter you're not acting normal – whats wrong?" "If you don't know by now you never will!"

"Well I don't, so whats eating you?" "I'm just so happy I'm delerious!" "Happy – oh good," he says as he slowly lowers his eyelids & his bottom back into his chair (which I think I am going to burn tomorrow!). "Of course I'm happy," I shriek, "what woman wouldn't be happy who sits home day after day, doing nothing but being a maid – and by the way the pay is terrible!!!!" "Here we go again," he sighs. "What have you done today thats so awful?" "Nothing much," I say, "in between being wined & dined by my two most ardent lovers I've managed to wash the clothes, change the sheets, cook two meals, take the boys swimming, take Lee out to his new paper route and in generally when I wasn't working my tail off I was bored – bored – BORED!!" "Well, he says, if you're that tired why don't you go on up to bed as soon as you've finished feeding everyone dinner tonight and go to sleep, the boys & I will put ourselves to bed later on!"

Now dear readers, isn't that touching? I mean that is true comprehension on his part if I ever saw true comprehension on anyone's part. Just go on to bed if you're that pooped sweetheart; and when I finally give out like the ole grey mare I guess then he'll just send me off to a glue factory and that will be that!!!

Timothy Leary Held For Extradition

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Swiss authorities are holding LSD advocate Timothy Leary for extradition to the United States.

A Justice Ministry spokesman said today that Leary, who escaped 10 months ago from a California prison where he was serving a sentence for marijuana possession, was arrested Wednesday at the request of the U.S. Embassy.

The spokesman said Leary was arrested at Villars sur Ollon, in the Lake Geneva area, and was taken to a jail in Lausanne. His wife was with him but was not taken into custody.

Sources in Europe said the former Harvard lecturer was en route from Algeria to Geneva when arrested.

Leary, 50, was taken into "provisional custody for extradition" and was not charged with any violation in Switzerland, the spokesman said. He added that Leary can be held for two months while the extradition request is awaited.

In California, a spokesman for Gov. Ronald Reagan said the required papers would be forwarded to the U.S. State Department.

Leary escaped from the minimum security California Men's Colony at San Luis Obispo shortly after his parole was denied. He had been sentenced by a California judge in December 1969 to six months to 10 years imprisonment.

He fled to Algeria and took refuge with the fugitive Black Panther Leader Eldridge Cleaver and other members of the militant group. But last February Cleaver said he had placed Leary and his wife in protective custody and that the Panthers had withdrawn support from Leary's psychedelic movement because "his mind has been blown by acid."

Leary also faces a 10-year prison sentence in Texas for smuggling marijuana into the United States from Mexico.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM...

I am pleased to announce today my co-sponsorship of the proposed Farm Credit Act of 1971. Hearings on the proposed legislation will begin on July 12 before the House Committee on Agriculture.

The Farm Credit System over the years has been the primary and sometimes sole source of financial aid to rural citizens. The System has evolved from a series of laws passed by the Congress, beginning in 1916. The precautionary limitations incorporated at that time are now inhibiting the extension of the amount and types of credit, and the flexibility needed by the modern farm community.

One new area of credit extension will be in the field of rural residence financing. The Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks will be authorized to make loans in this area for the building, buying, improving, and repairing of non - farm rural homes. This provision will allow the Farm Credit System to contribute in a new way to rural development. This service will fill a gap between areas served by savings and loan associations and the areas served by subsidized credit for public housing and the Farmer's Home Administration low income borrowers' loans.

This bill will also provide for the financing of farm related services such as custom spraying, pruning, and harvesting.

Permission will be granted to the Federal Land Banks and Intermediate Credit Banks to own and lease necessary facilities and equipment as needed by eligible borrowers, enabling farmers to have use of infrequently used, but valuable and expensive machines and buildings.

For the Federal Land Bank specifically, this bill would remove the restriction which limits loans to sixty -five percent of the farm's appraised value, thus creating a greater flexibility in mortgage lending. This step will place more of the new loan responsibility on the Bank, and will undoubtedly be important to young farmers as they seek adequate financing for their new enterprises.

Sound security other than first mortgage on real estate would be acceptable in certain situations, thereby making credit available for long term credit needs. Much needed flaexibility would be provided when the farmer has clear repayment capacity and additional collateral to supplement rural real estate.

It should be noted that my bill does not extend the operation of the Federal Farm Credit System to financially related services, as has been proposed by some. Examples of such services are estate planning and record keeping. I feel that such an extension would be carrying the system too far. Estate planning and record keeping are functions equally essential for business and professional people. There is nothing about those services which are peculiar to farmers. These are fields more appropriately left to our conventional lending institutions. Furthermore, I believe that if we take our Federal Farm Credit System so far afield, there will be an irresistible demand from the public to terminate the preferential taz status enjoyed by our Federal Farm Credit System. I am in accord with the Administration on this point and subscribe to the statement of Under Secretary of Agriculture Phil Campbell made before the Senate Committee on Agriculture and Forestry's Subcommittee on Agricultural Credit on May 20, 1971:

The Administration has reservations about the possible imbalances in the competitive relationships between private lenders and the Farm Credit System which could result from the Farm Credit System entering into new fields of lending and services while maintaining current tax exemptions.

I am convinced that the next decade will be a crucial time for funding the lending operations of the Farm Credit Banks. Both political and economic factors promise a degree of competition by borrowers in the money and capital markets heretofore unknown to the Farm Credit System. In the past ten years the debt of the Farm Credit System has tripled. The total of all securities outstanding was less than 10 million dollars in 1960, but now is nearly forty million dollars. This trend is expected to continue. To meet this need, the Farm Credit System must be modernized and made more responsive to the American farming community which it is designed to serve.

P.S. FROM BARBARA...

After a lapse of over 30 years, Mrs. Nixon has reinstated a White House tradition, and I'm glad I was here to be invited and involved. This spring, she hosted a series of three luncheons for the wives of Members off Congress.

There can be nothing more elegant than a White House luncheon, and I might add, more filling. This was no dainty "salad luncheon". The main course was a delicious seafood dish in crepes, fresh buttered asparagus, hearts of palm salad, and the most enormous cream puff filled with a light custard and absolutely smothered with whipped cream.

The mood of the luncheon was elegant, but very informal. The entertainment was the Marine Corps Strolling Strings, and they are always delightful.

We were served coffee in the Blue Room, and Tricia joined our group for a short time. At that point, early in May, she was busy with wedding preparations.

I hope this is one reinstated tradition that continues because a White House luncheon is a delightful experience.

Paul Flowers Greenhouse

He has sounded forth the trumpet that shall never call retreat;

He is sifting out the hearts of men before His judgment-seat:

O, be swift, my soul, to answer Him! Be Jubilant my feet!

Our God is marching on.

In all our tradition, there is no more stirring passage than these lines from Julia Ward Howe's "Battle-Hymn of the Republic," in my estimation the most moving patriotic song ever written.

Yet I must reserve a photo-finish place for the final stanza of Franics Scott Key's "The Star-Spangled Banner":

O, thus be it ever when free men shall stand,

Between their loved homes and a war's desolation,

Blest with vict'ry and peace, may this heav'n-rescued land,

Praise the Power that hath made and preserved us a nation.

Then conquer we must, when our cause, it is just,

And this be our motto,—"In God is our trust."

And the Star-Spangled Banner in triumph shall wave,

O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave.

On a portable desk which he had built with his own hands, Thomas Jefferson drafted the Declaration of Independence at Philadelphia, after a committee, composed of John Adams, Benjamin Franklin, Robert R. Livingston and Roger Sherman, had been named to express the will of the Continental Congress to the effect that "these United Colonies are, and of right ought to be, free and independent states, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the state of Great Britain, is, and ought to be, totally dissolved."

"...(The) King of Great Britain kept open a market where men were bought and sold, and prostrated his negative by suppressing Virginia's legislative attempts to restrain this execrable commerce."

Congress struck this from the document.

John Adams, a delegate to the Continental Congress (he defended British soldiers who fired into the mob during the riot which has been called "the Boston Massacre," and later became president) said of the Declaration of Independence:

"I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward evermore."

The fact that Thomas Jefferson, author and signer of the Declaration, and John Adams, a signer, both later to become presidents of the United States, died on July 4, 1826, each rejoicing "that the other yet lives," appears more than mere coincidence.

On a lighter note, it is amusing how saints and patriots confuse the Declaration and the Constitution. Frequently some misinformed character will refer to the massive signature of John Hancock on "the Constitution"; indeed, I have actually heard quoted what the speaker fondly believed to be the Preamble to one or the other, in these sonorous words:

"Fourscore and seven years ago..." but that passage also has been attributed to the Bible.

JULY 4, 1968

The time "was neither wrong nor right,"

Said one "acquainted with the night."

The time is neither wrong nor right

It's less than perfect day and night.

Our nation's supped on chaos pure

Sick sorrow's rule we do endure.

As the bells peal on this great day

Let's hope to lighten dire dismay.

Our flag means courage all the night

Let's let it wave in the sun's light.

Trade With China More Negative

The Committee of One Million (Against the Admission of Communist China to the United Nations)

In late December, the U. S. State Department announced the liberalization of rules restricting American trade with Communist China as follows:

1. Foreign subsidiaries of U. S.-owned firms will henceforth be permitted to engage in trade with communist China on non-strategic items. For example, a subsidiaryof a U. S. firm in Canada or Europe could sell trucks or radios to Peking and buy from it soybeans or tungsten.

2. Restrictions were eliminated requiring U.S. firms or banks to obtain certificates of origin on "Chinese" goods to distinguish, for example, between goods produced in mainland China and Hong Kong.

3. The $100 limit was removed on the purchase of Communist Chinese goods by Americans (tourists, librarians, etc.) for non-commercial use.

A State Department spokesman described the actions as "a small step-- not a great leap forward." He added that the relaxations were unilateral.

To date, there has been no response from Communist China nor any indication as to whether it will seek trade with the foreign subsidiaries of U. S. firms.

The Committee of One Million is certain that these diplomatic moves were made in good faith and believes that they should not be interpreted as an abandonment of our position against the recognition of Communist China or opposition to its admission to the United Nations.

Nevertheless, the Committee is firmly convinced that the certain disadvantages of these initiatives far outweigh the possible advantages.

Psychologically, such unilateral actions by us will only encourage the truculence and intransigence of Communist China. As one Asian observer commented:

"Look at what the U. S. spent to get to the moon. And Mao Tse-tung just sits there and the moon (that is, the United States) comes to him."

Economically, we can expect to benefit only very slightly. The products and produce which Communist China can export are not what the U. S. needs most.

In contrast, the moves are certain to dishearten the Republic of China, the 20 million overseas Chinese and our other Asian allies such as South Korea, South Vietnam, Thailand, the Philippines, Malaysia, and Indonesia.

The moves are certain to encourage Japan and other countries to increase their dealings with Red China and thereby help it out of its difficulties. They will also have their impact upon the people of Mainland China, who want the Mao regime to be weakened not strengthened in its hold on them.

When you weigh the possible hypothetical gains for us against the certain and serious losses, you are obliged to conclude that the U.S. moves to liberalize trade with Communist China will hinder, not enhance, the prospects for freedom in mainland China and all of Asia.
